PLAYBOYS

COLLEGE GIRLS

Cindy Roubal
Georgia State University
Major: Broadcasting

A regents' scholar and dean's list student, this redheaded cover girl likes her men to be both romantic and realistic—and to know when to be which. That special guy must be intelligent, a sensual kisser, unafraid to be a little wild and understanding.

Erin Wilson

University of Alberta

Major: Education

"My mother could easily have been a Playboy centerfold in her younger days, my grandmother was a can-can dancer and the family is full of musicians. Maybe show business is my true calling and destiny."

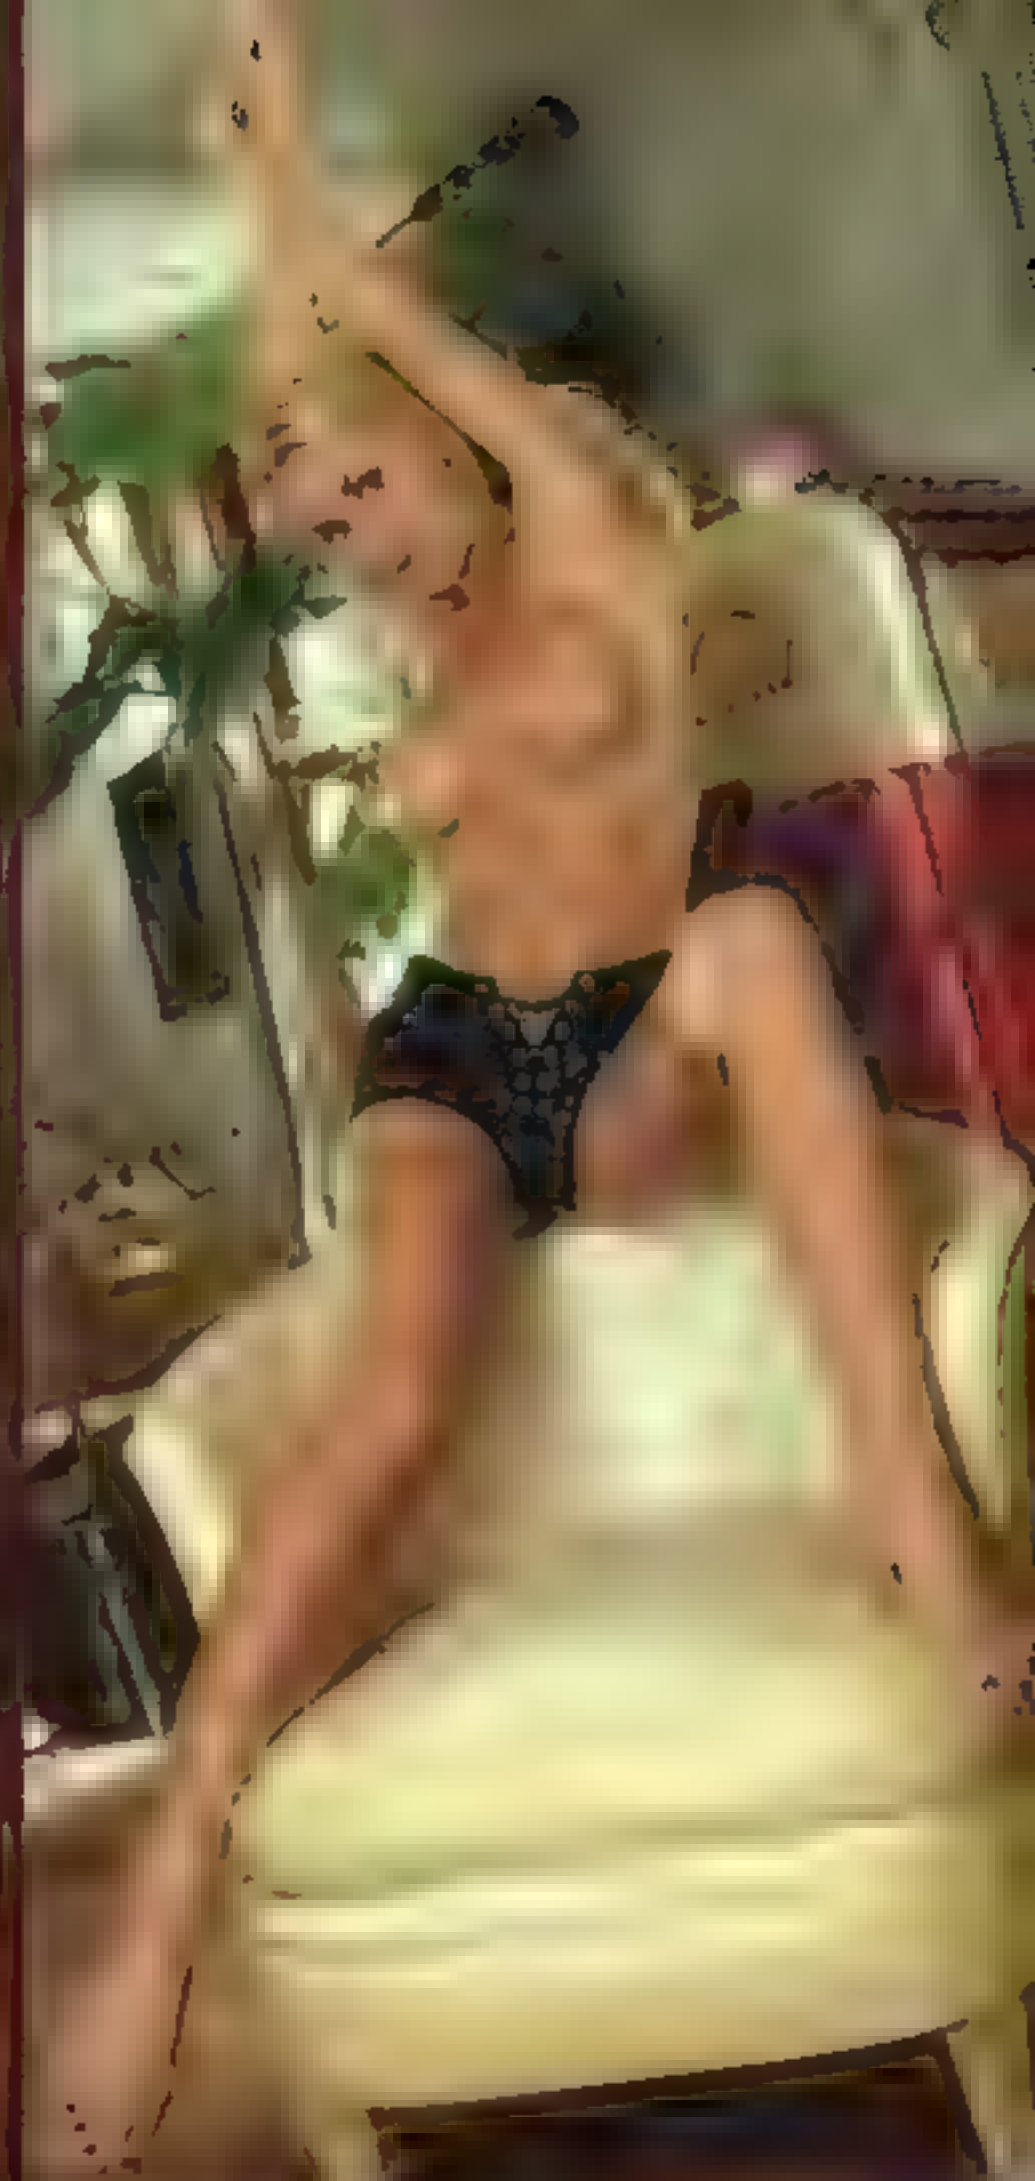

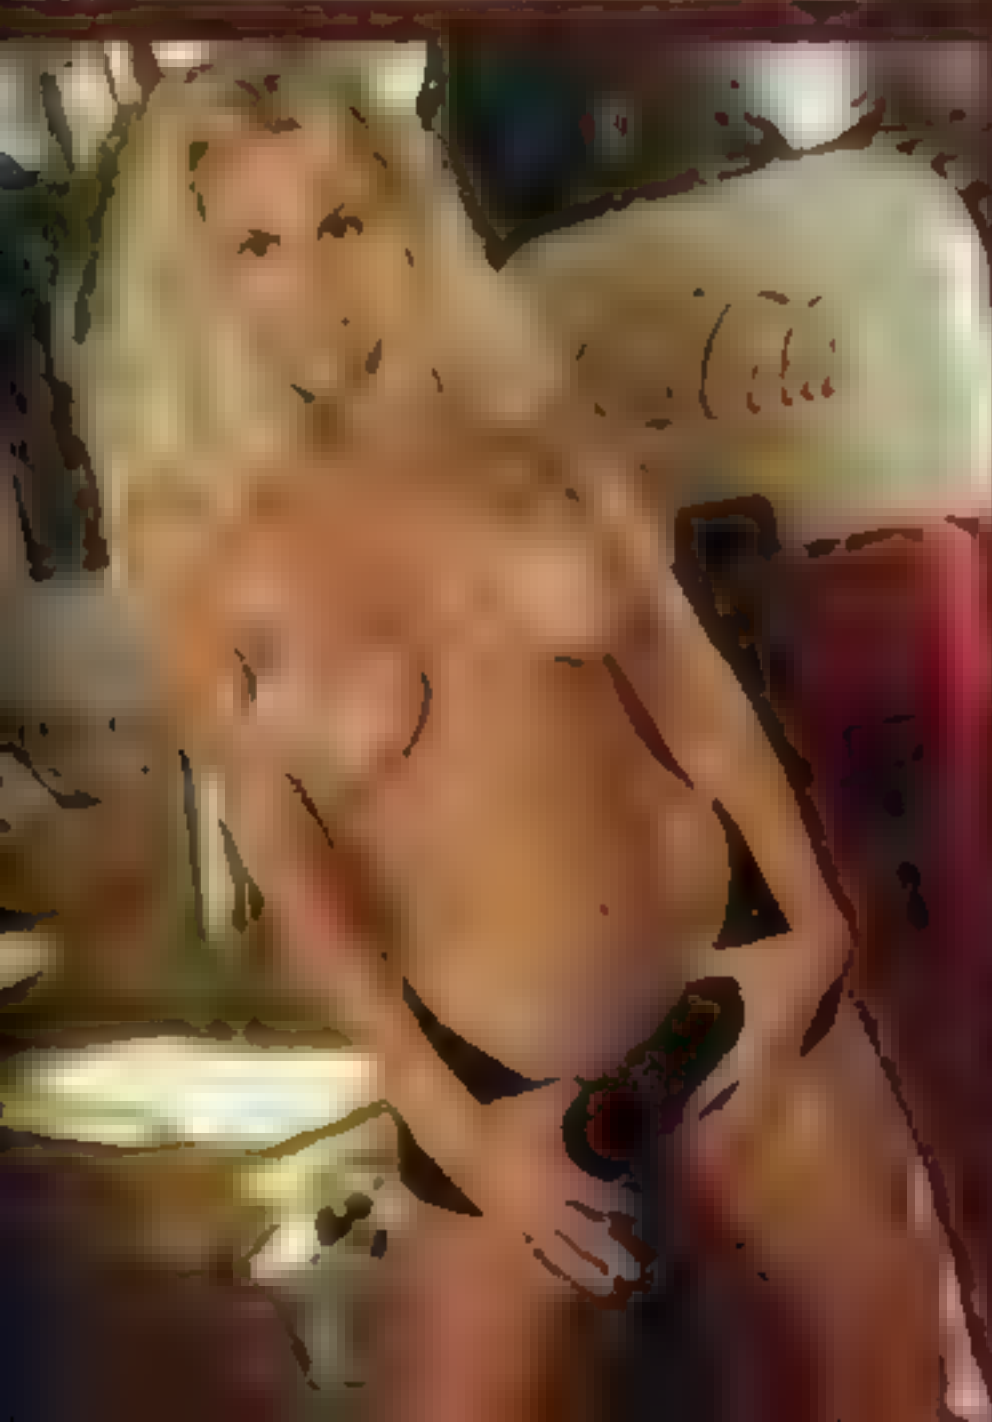

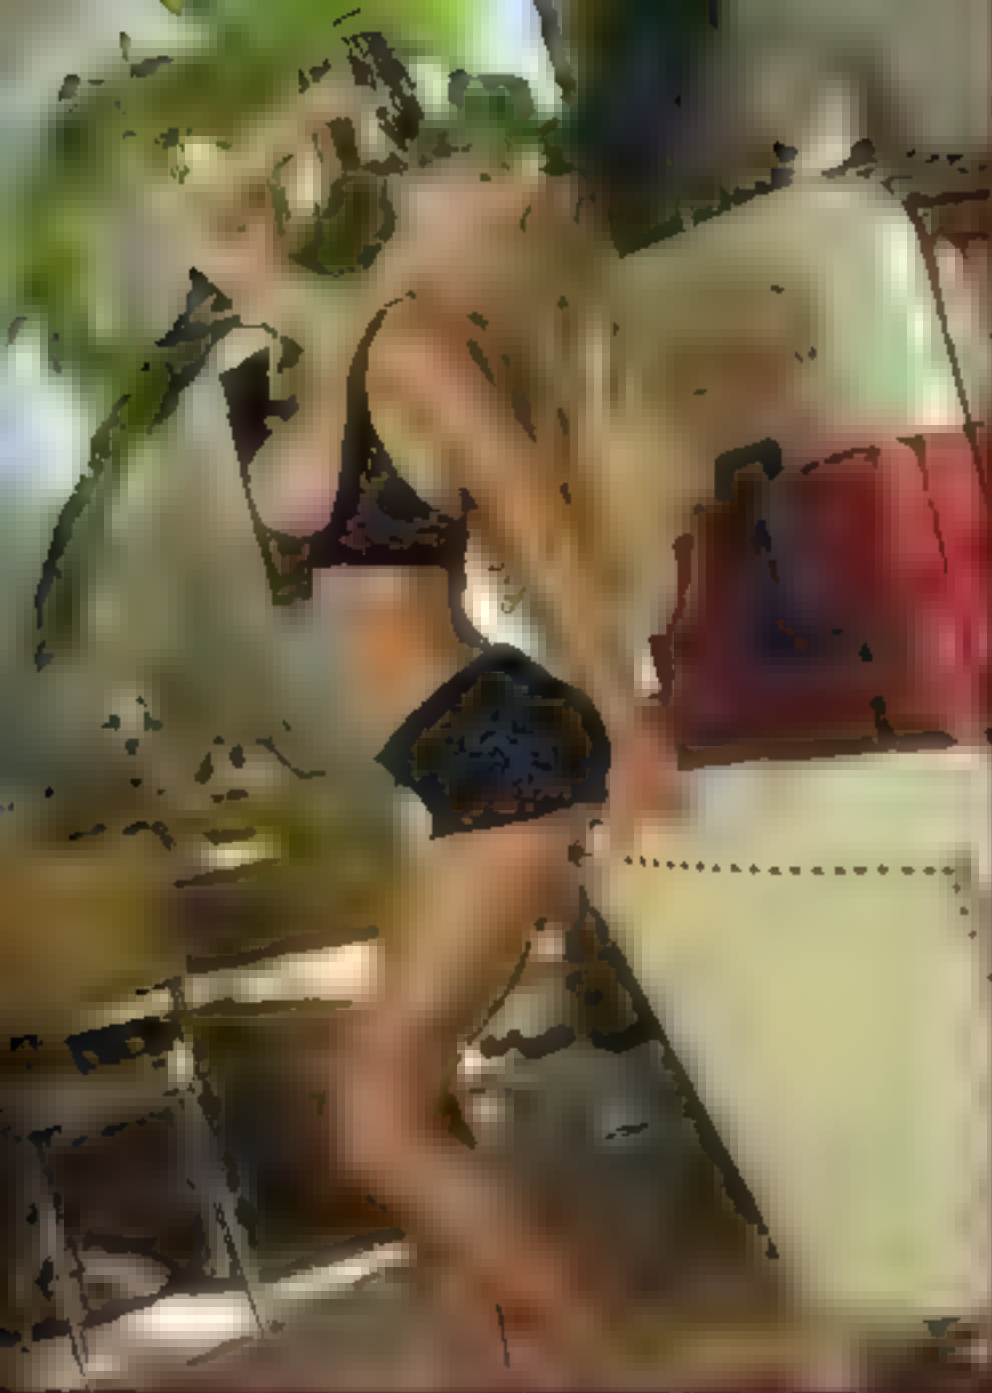

Lisa Borghese
Santa Monica College
Major: Broadcasting

Suitors beware: One thing this hopeful sports broadcaster always does on a first date is to bring along a friend. And she never stays out real late or holds hands at that first meeting. But if you're muscular, ambitious, spontaneous, funny, and a little bit shy you just may get a second chance to ask for her hand.

El Camino College

Brandy Flaming
El Camino College
Major: Speech Communications

Taking advantage of the favorable California weather, Brandy closes her text books to hit the beach, ride her bike or Rollerblade.

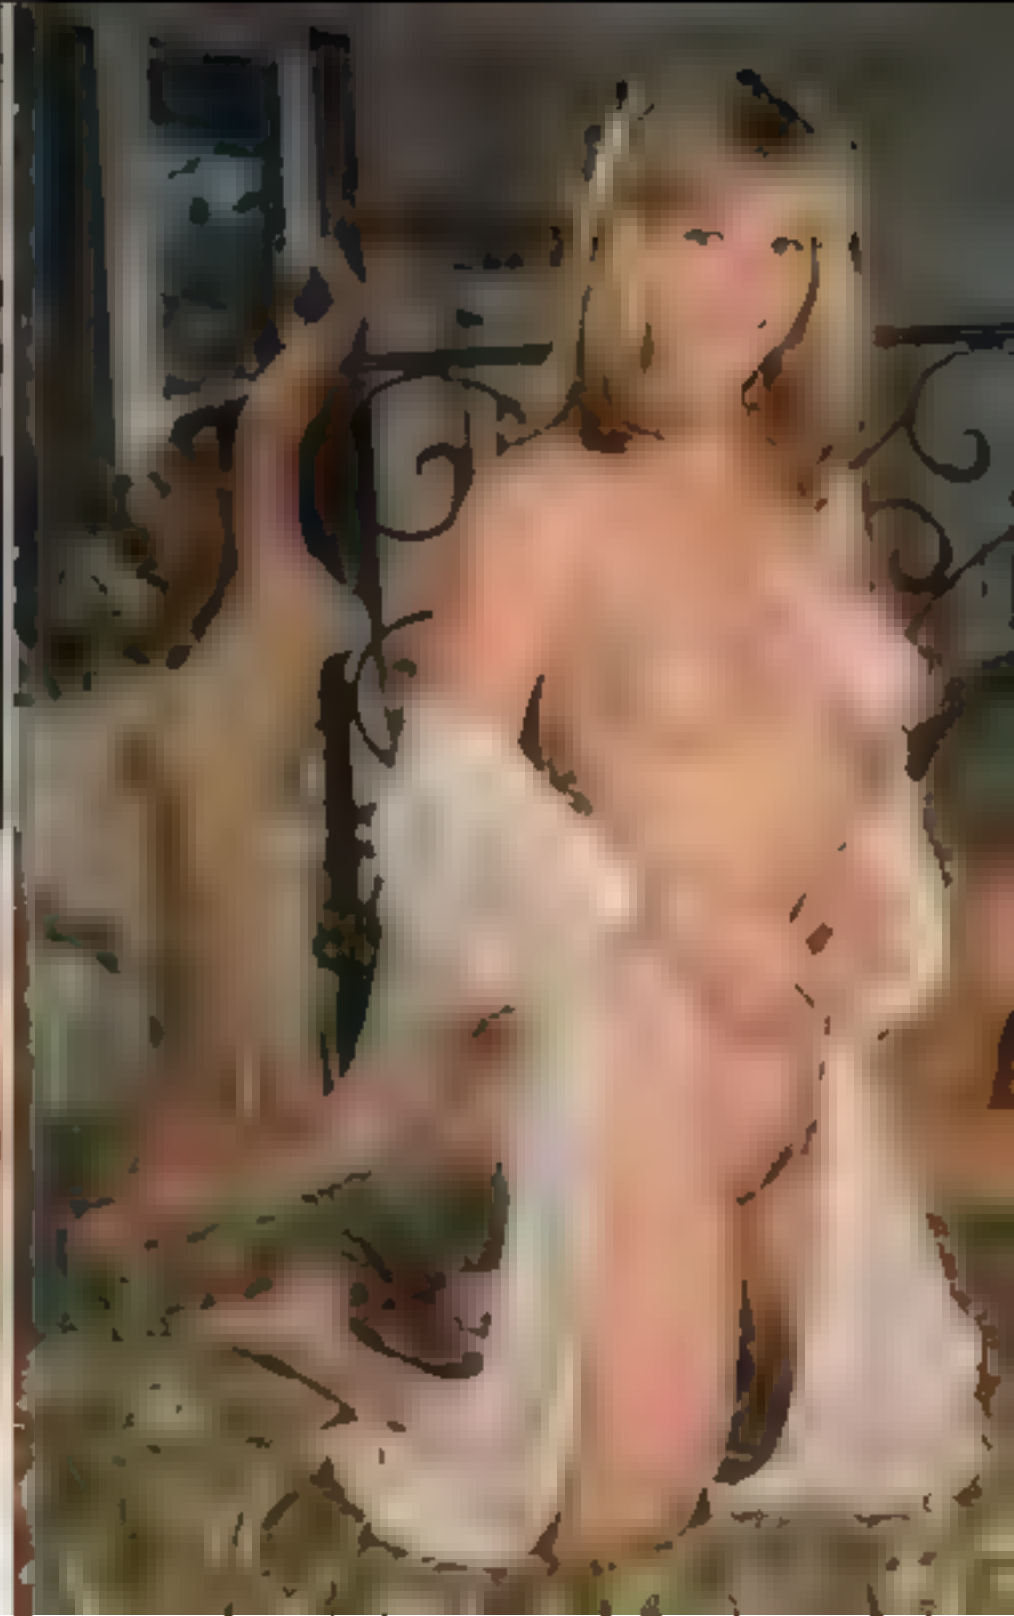

Carol, Camay & Calay Crist
California State at Northridge
Major: Radio, TV, Film

California born-and-bred, the Crist triplets, like most multiple-birth siblings, echo each others' likes and dislikes. Piggling out on pizza, going to the movies, walking, biking, playing tennis and soccer get a unanimous thumbs-up from the tireless trio. Their ultimate ambition? To own and operate their own film studio.

Bridget Smith
Fashion Institute (L.A.)
Major: Cosmetics and Fragrance Merchandising

She hopes her studies will land her a job
with a major cosmetics firm someday
When she's not hitting the books, Bridget gets in her kicks boxing and kickboxing

Rachel Wallace
Arizona State University
Major: Psychology

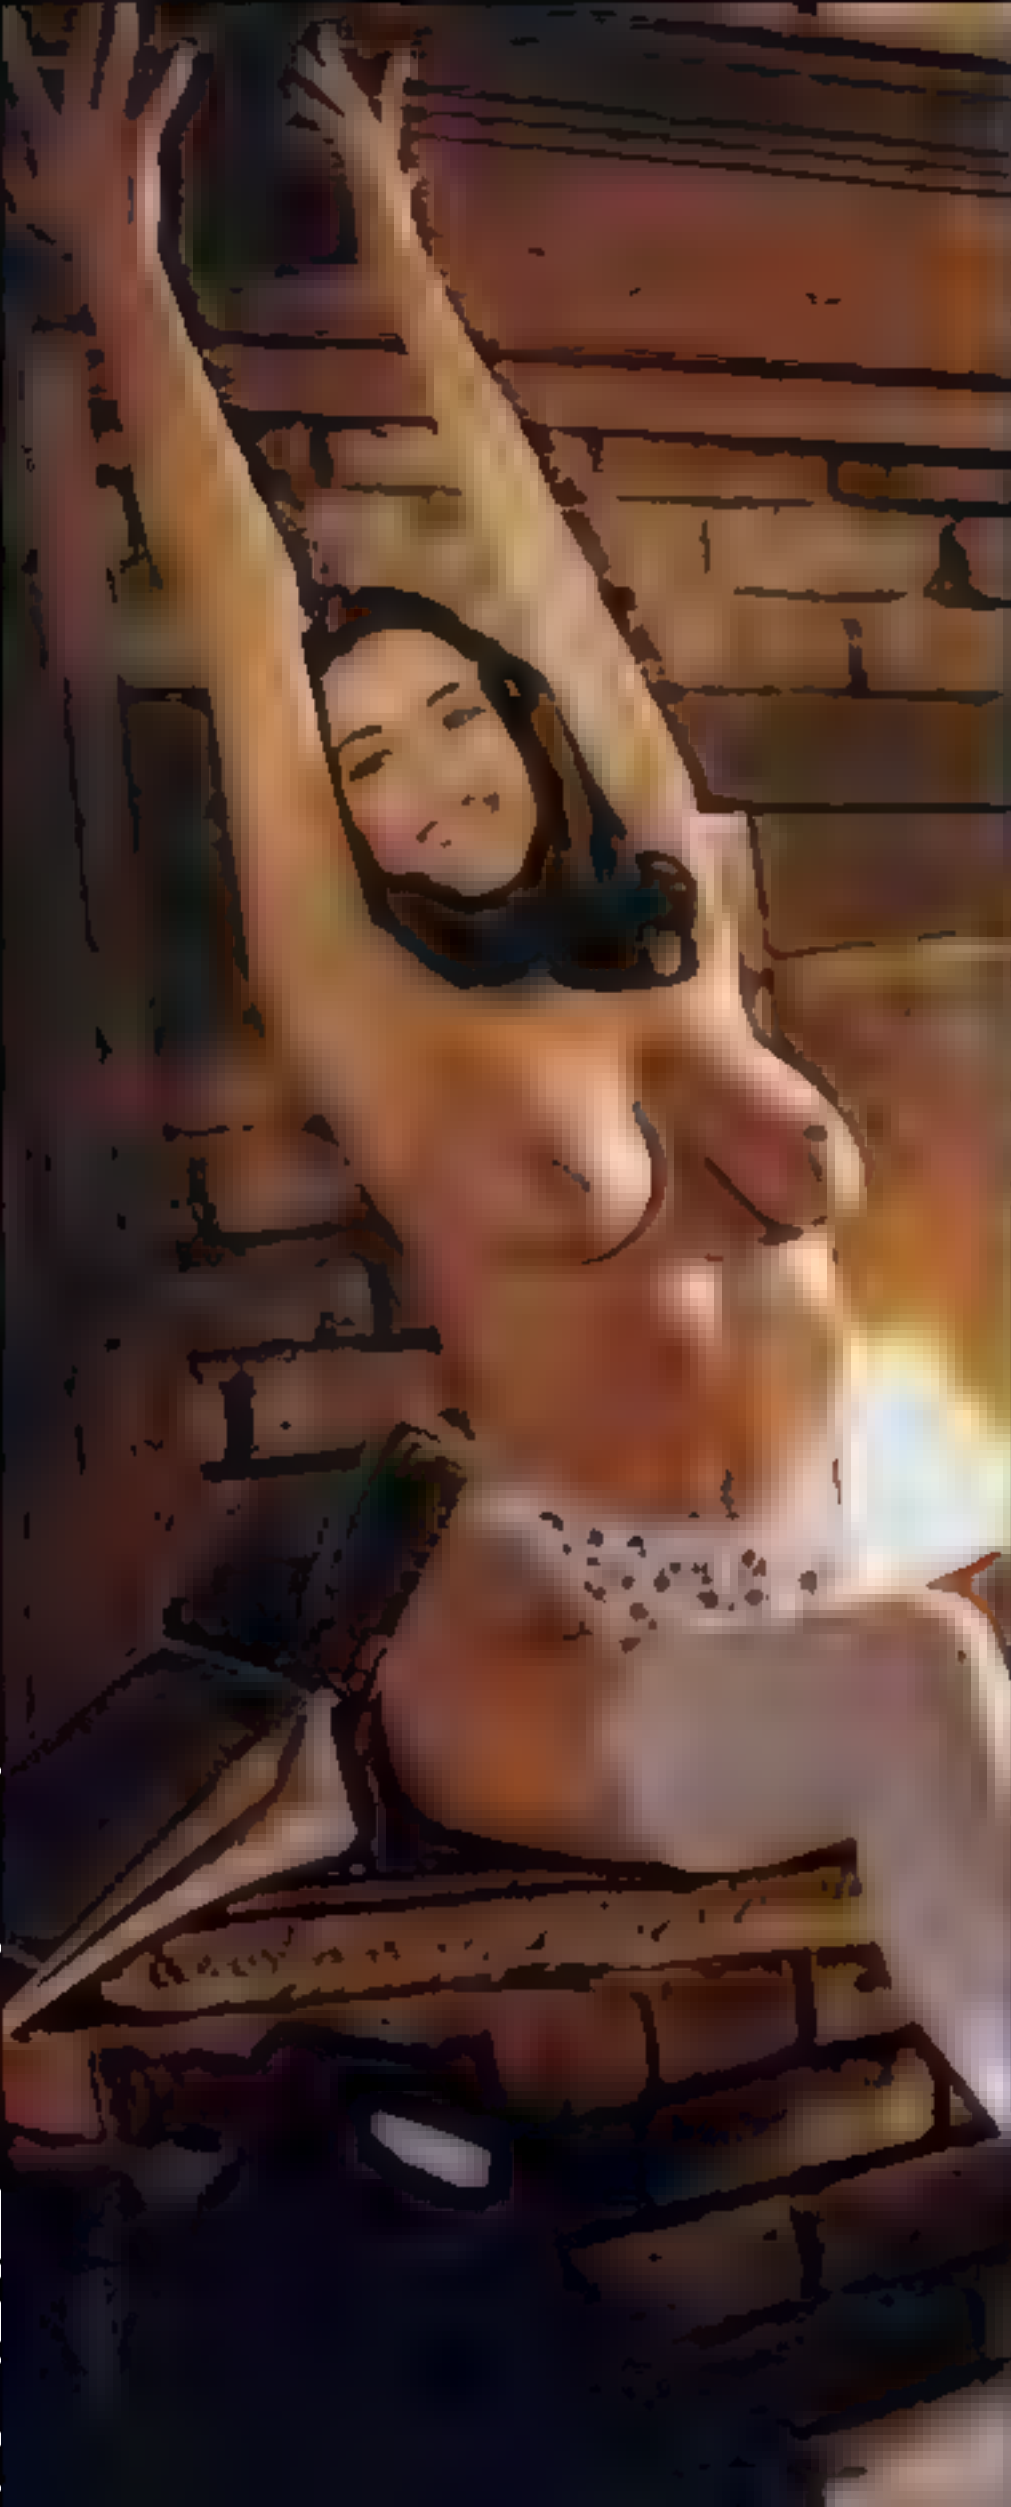

When Rachel puts a Freudian twist on psychology after her name, she'll have to be admitted into the "talk talk talk" and "are a sympathetic" class.

Jennifer Giesel
Notre Dame College
Major: Education

"I love my grandma and she is the most encouraging person I know. She always says, "Condoms are the best condoms - thanks to grandma!"

The October 1999 award gave you a glimpse of the Girls of the Big 12, a restructured conference resulting from the merger of the Eight and Sixteen Conferences. It's a great way to see the best from the west.

Denise Peterson

DePaul University

Major: Communication Arts

At only 4'10", Denise Peterson wouldn't stand a chance tipping off against her hometown heroes, the Chicago Bulls, but with a dean's list mention and a 3.5 GPA, she stands tall in academic circles.

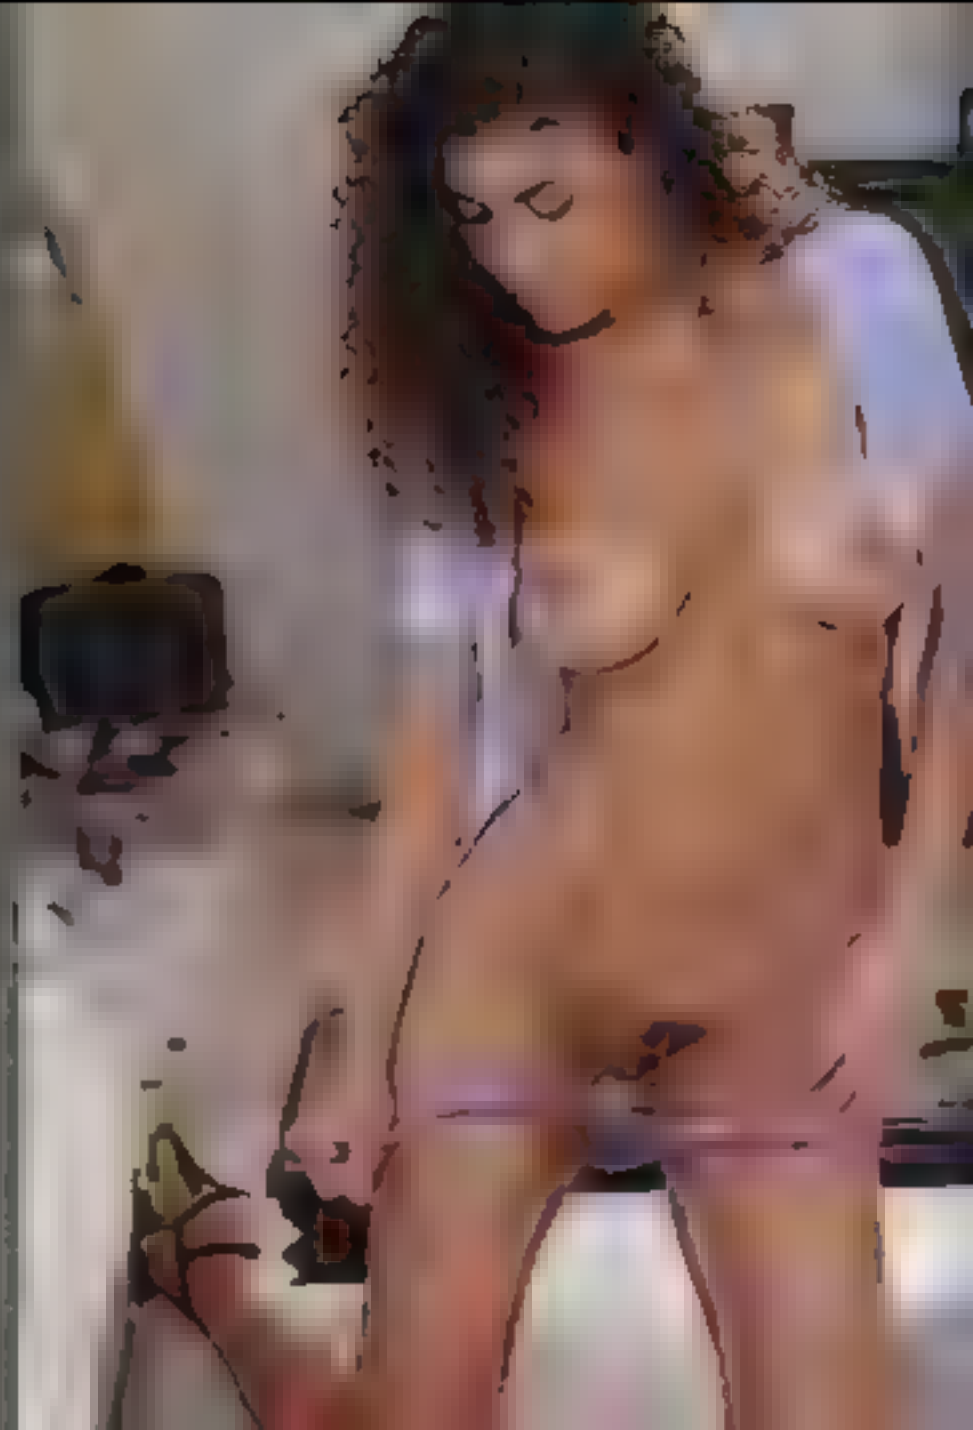

Eva Cannoli

Scottsdale Community College

Major: Elementary Education

Asked to describe herself, Eva said she is "vivacious, charming, very fun, creative, and admittedly demanding." She hopes to teach the fourth grade and "make a difference in children's lives." So, not surprisingly, "Jennifer Star would definitely have to be their 'dream'." Throw in intelligence, security, a caring and romantic attitude, and we have a match.

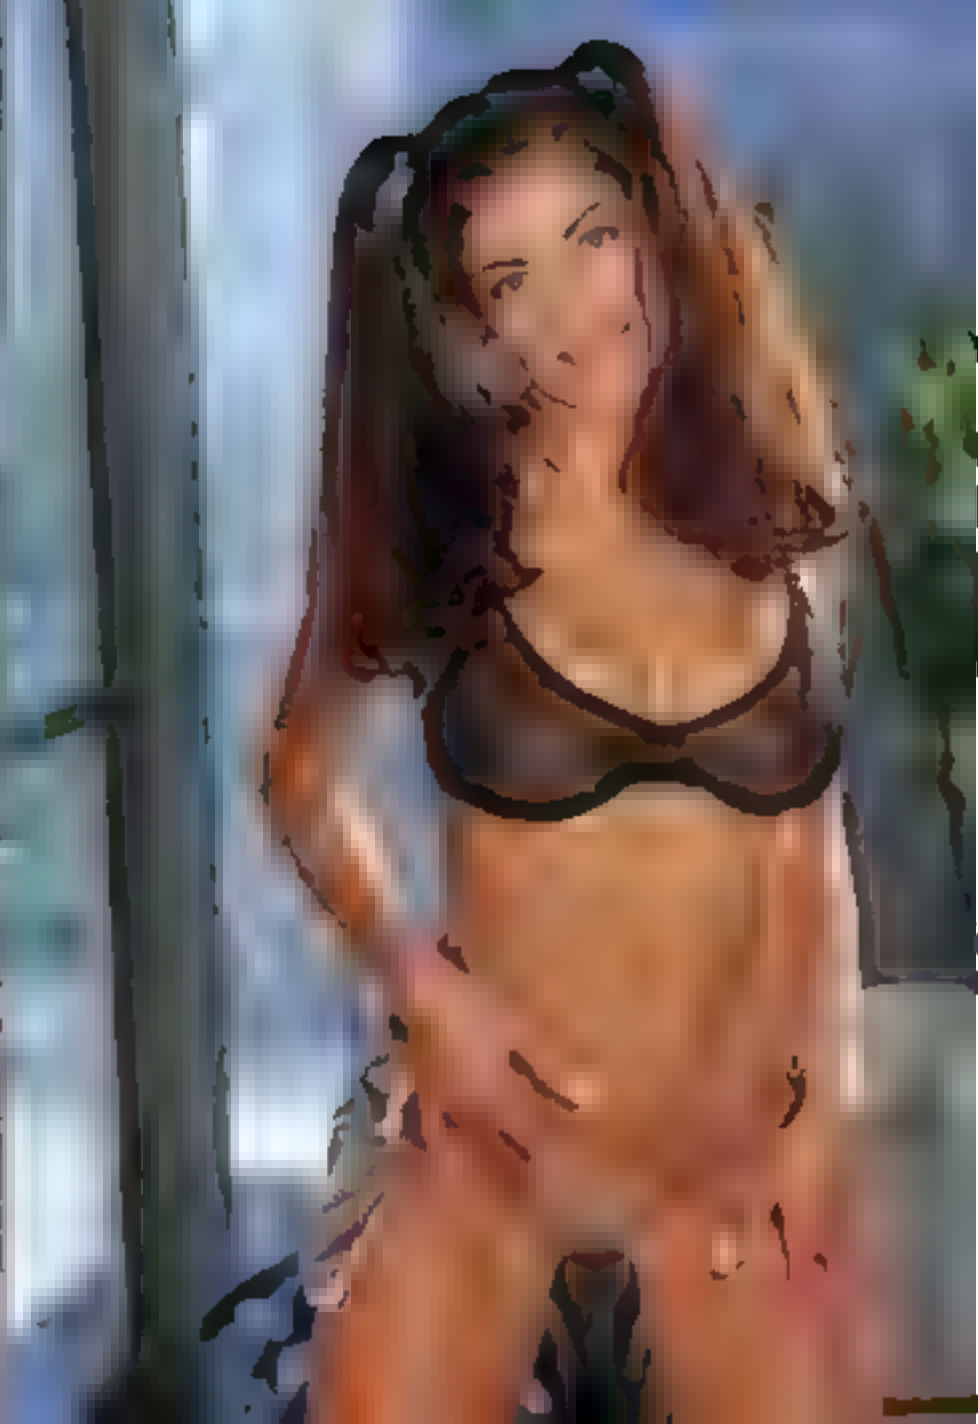

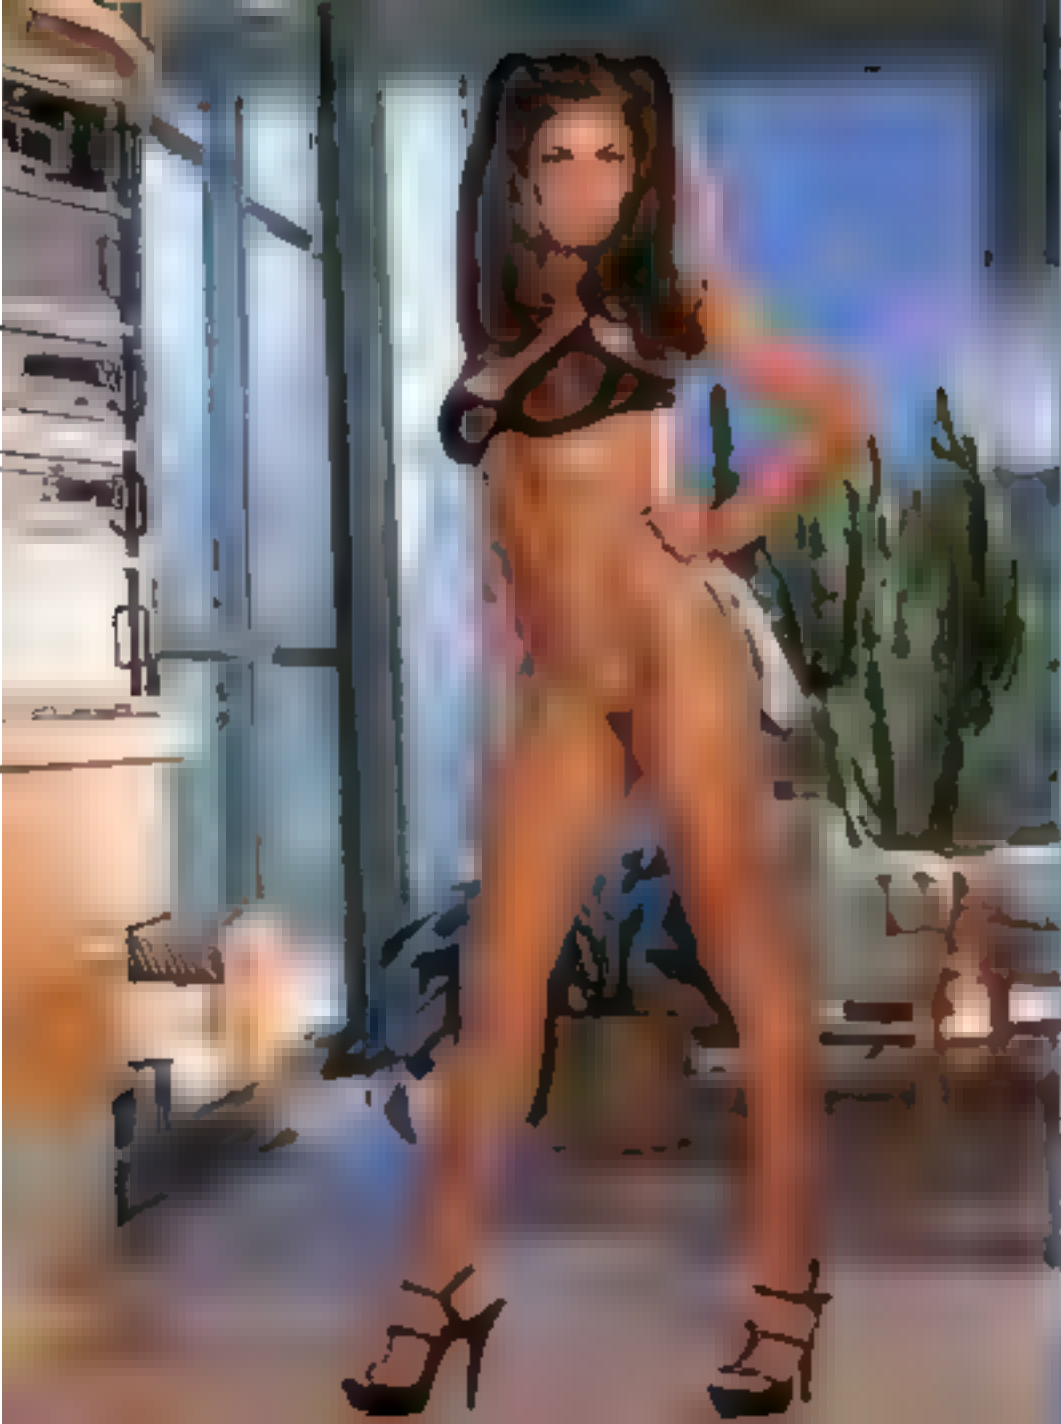

Dawn Rhoades
Penn State University
Major: Marketing

Her father taught her how to be a super chick when she was just nine and Dawn still enjoys riding her 'cycle to the beach. She's turned off by men's underwear and sleazy talk shows, but loves thunderstorms, chivalry and silk boxers.

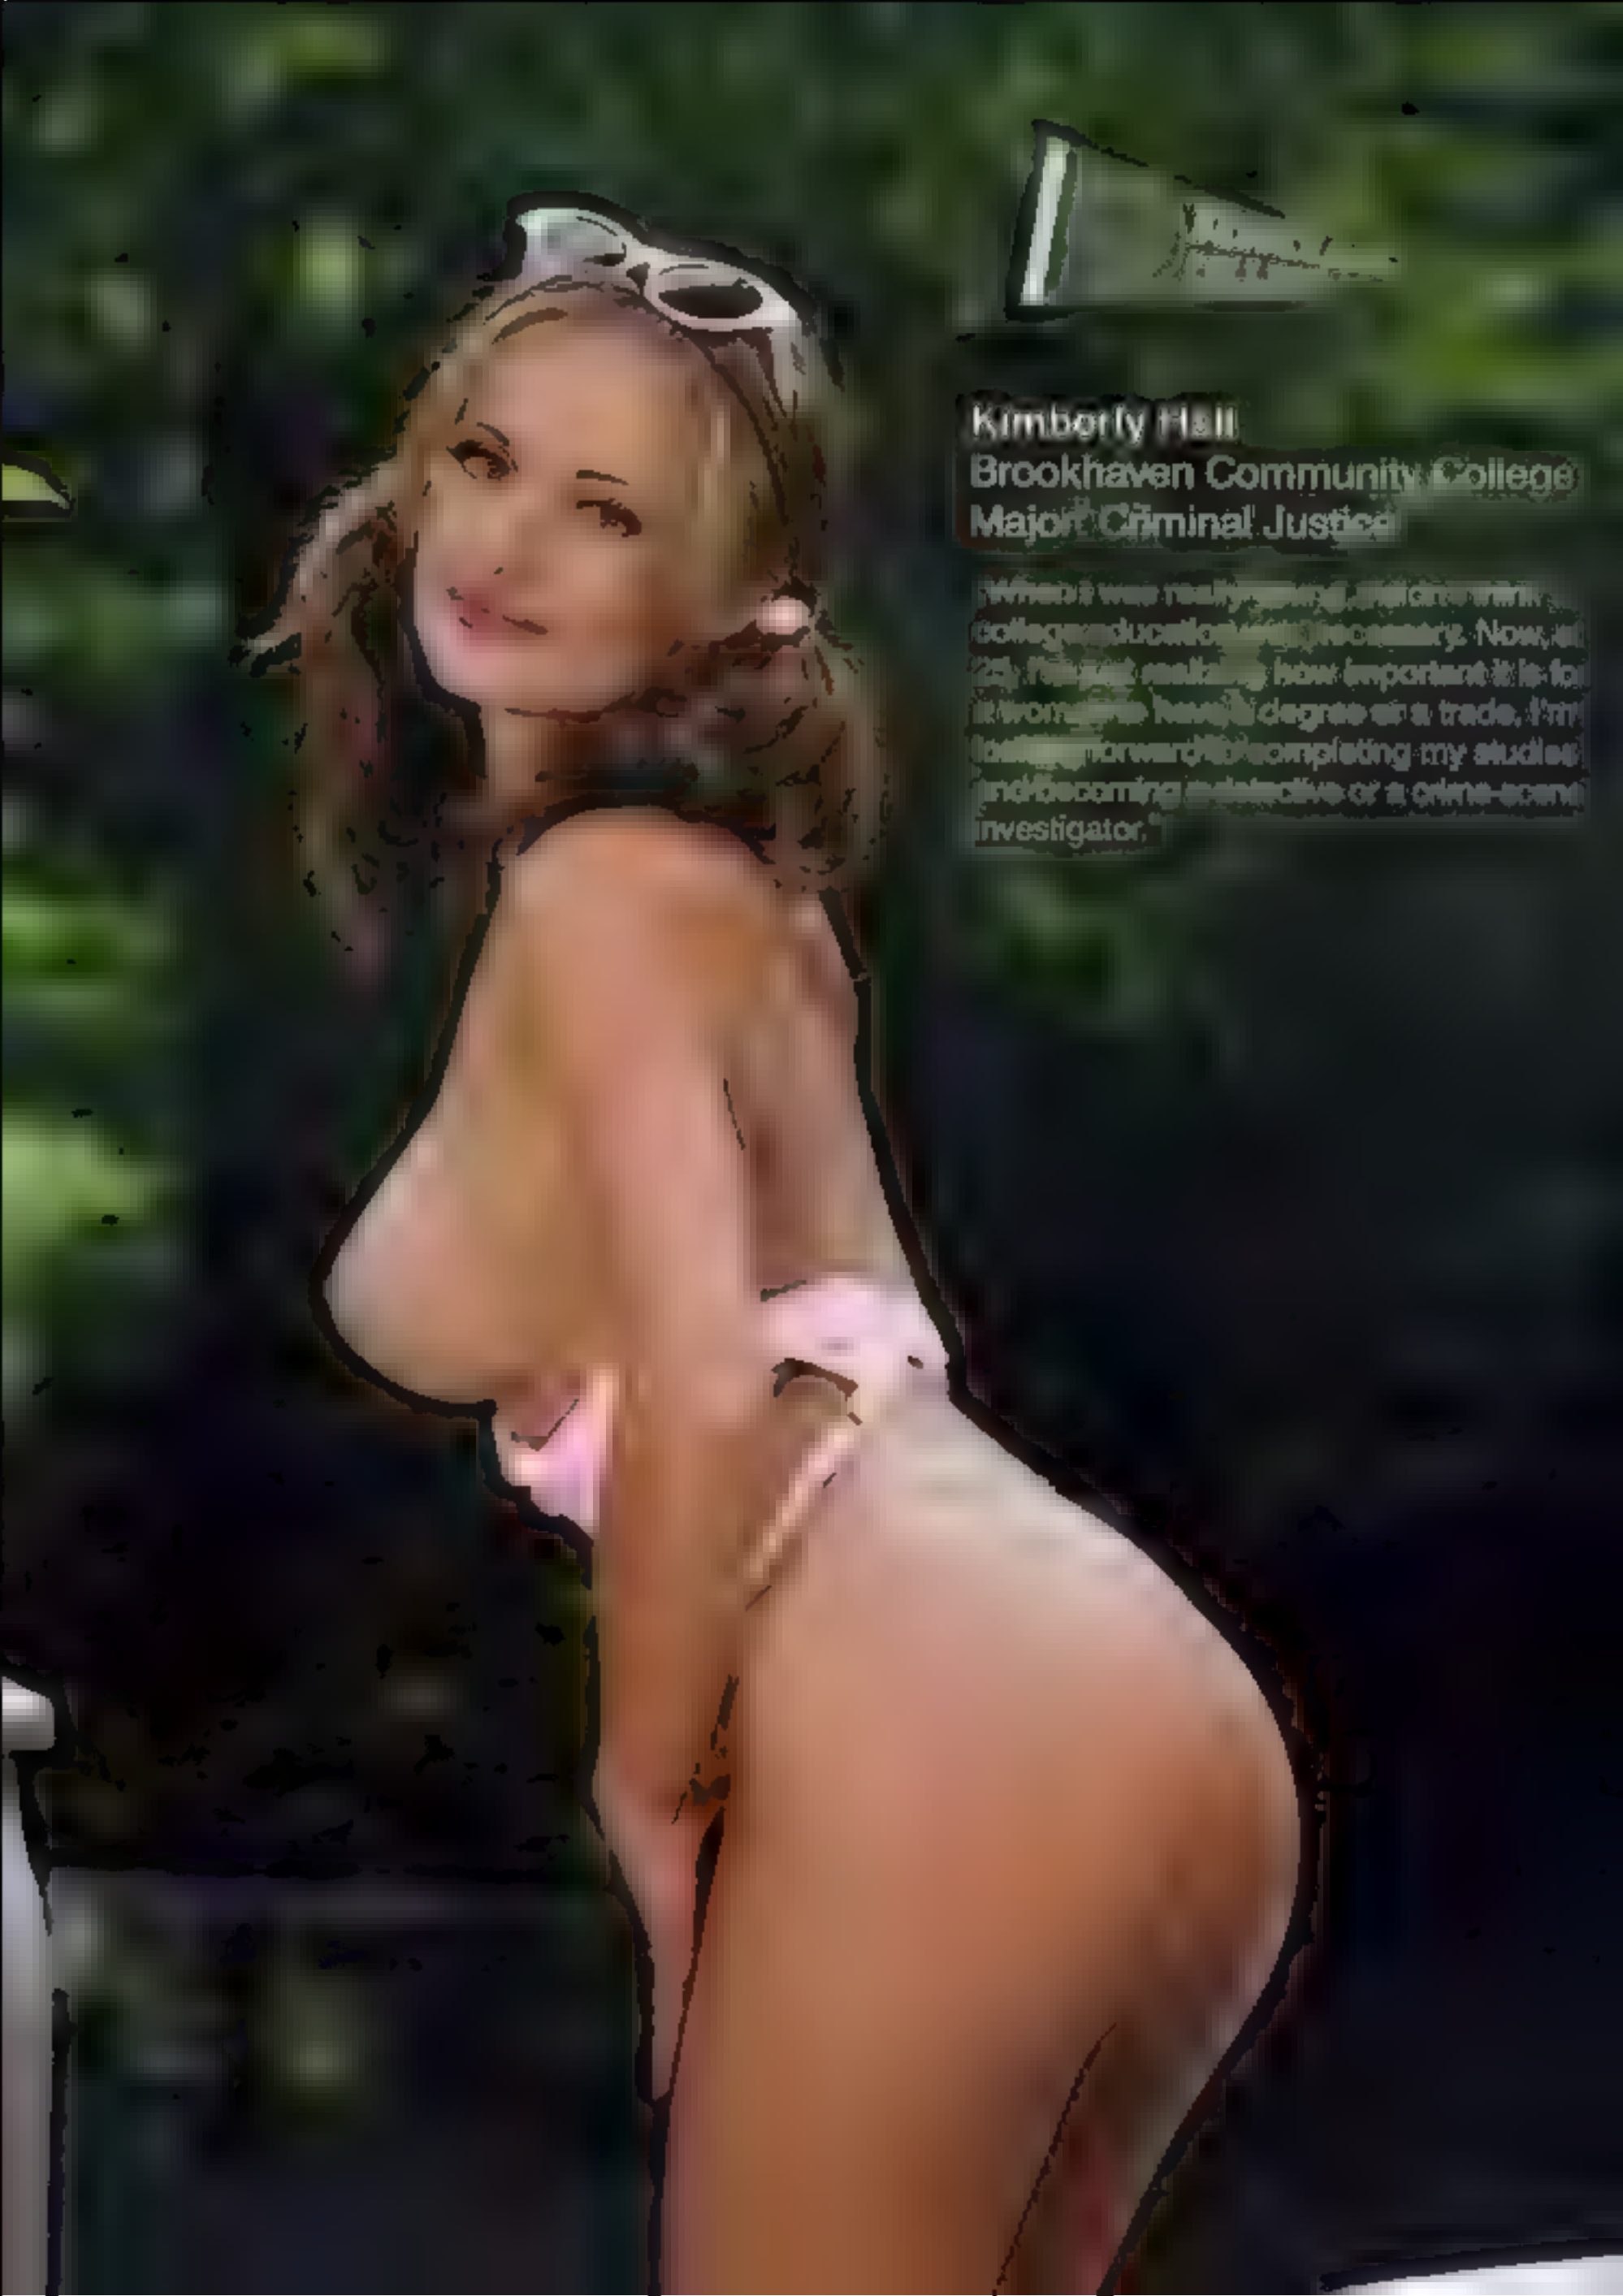

Milanka McKee
Arizona State University
Major: International Business

Born in Podgorica, Yugoslavia, Milanka's drive and ambition immigrated with her to the U.S. Her college transcript is packed with awards, including a Miss Future Business Executive award, and an unblemished A average. "I'm a very focused person. I set goals for myself and work hard at achieving them."

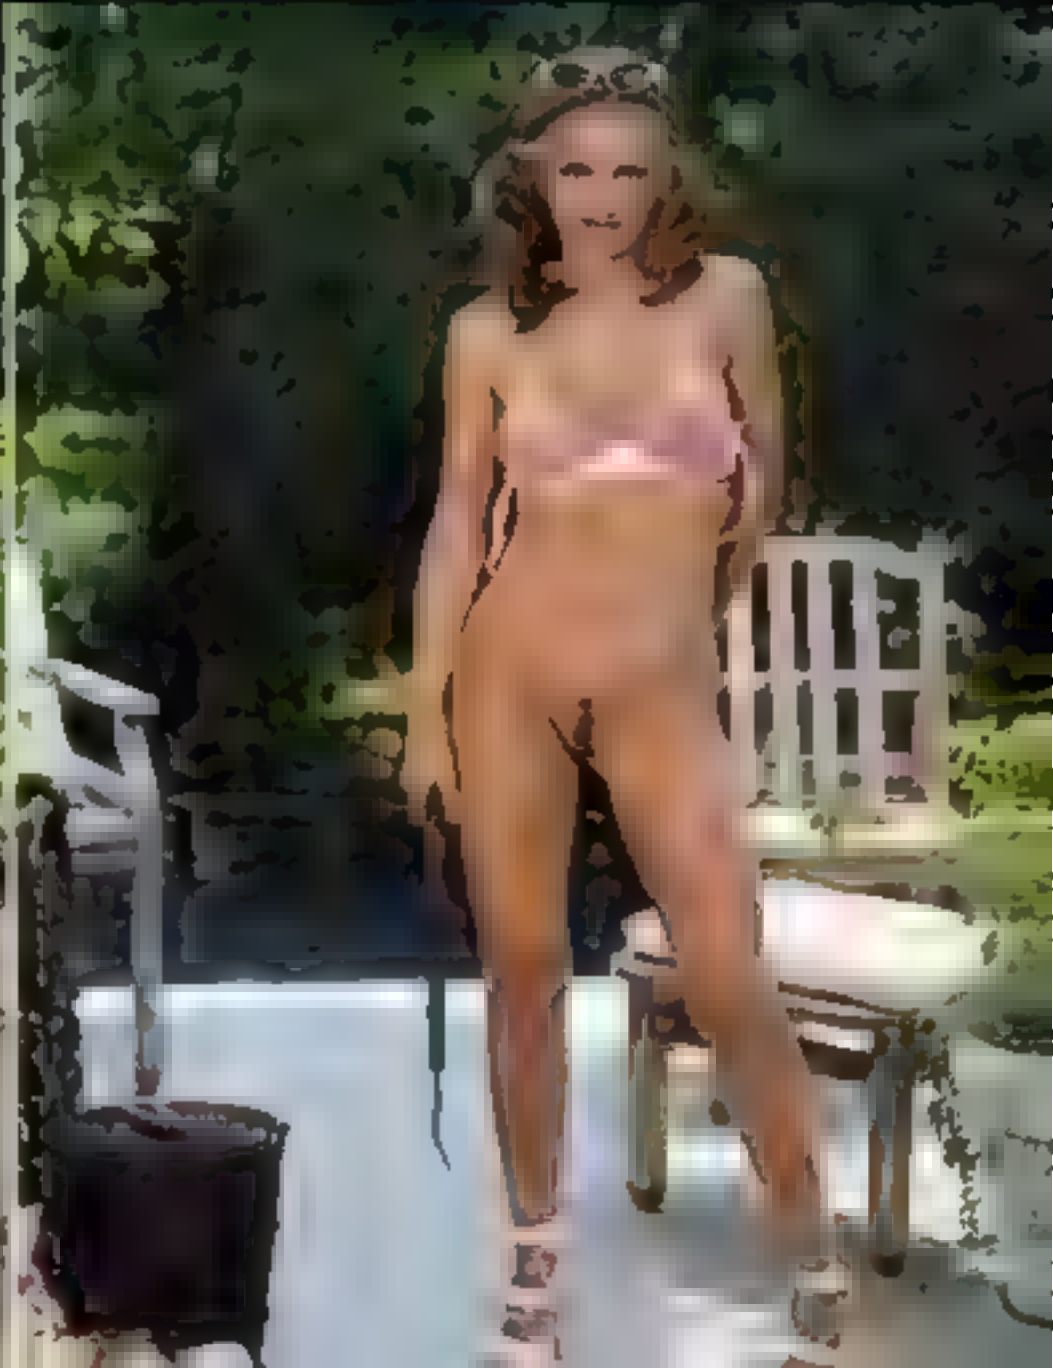

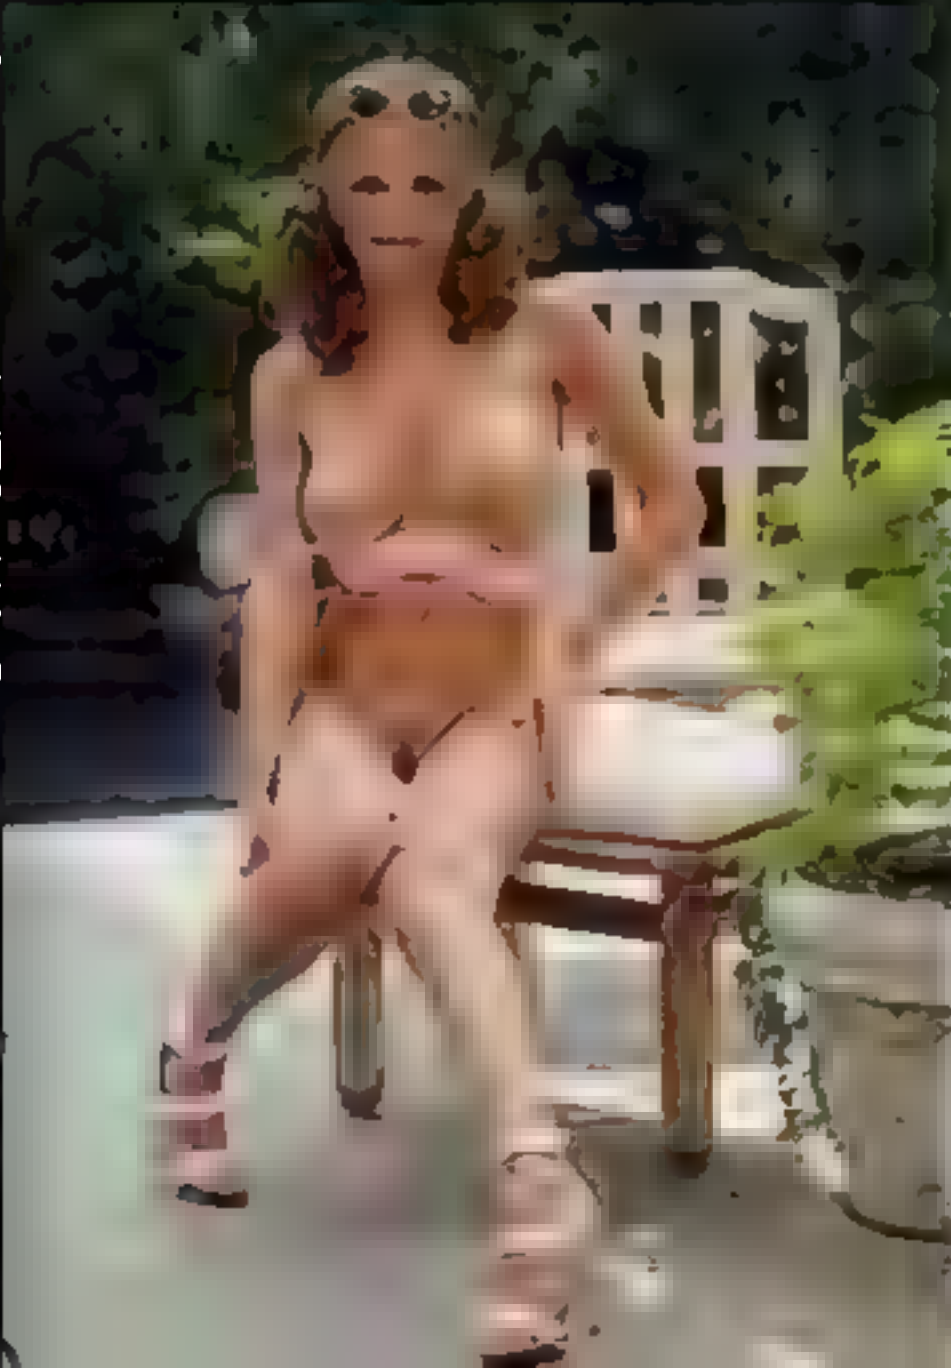

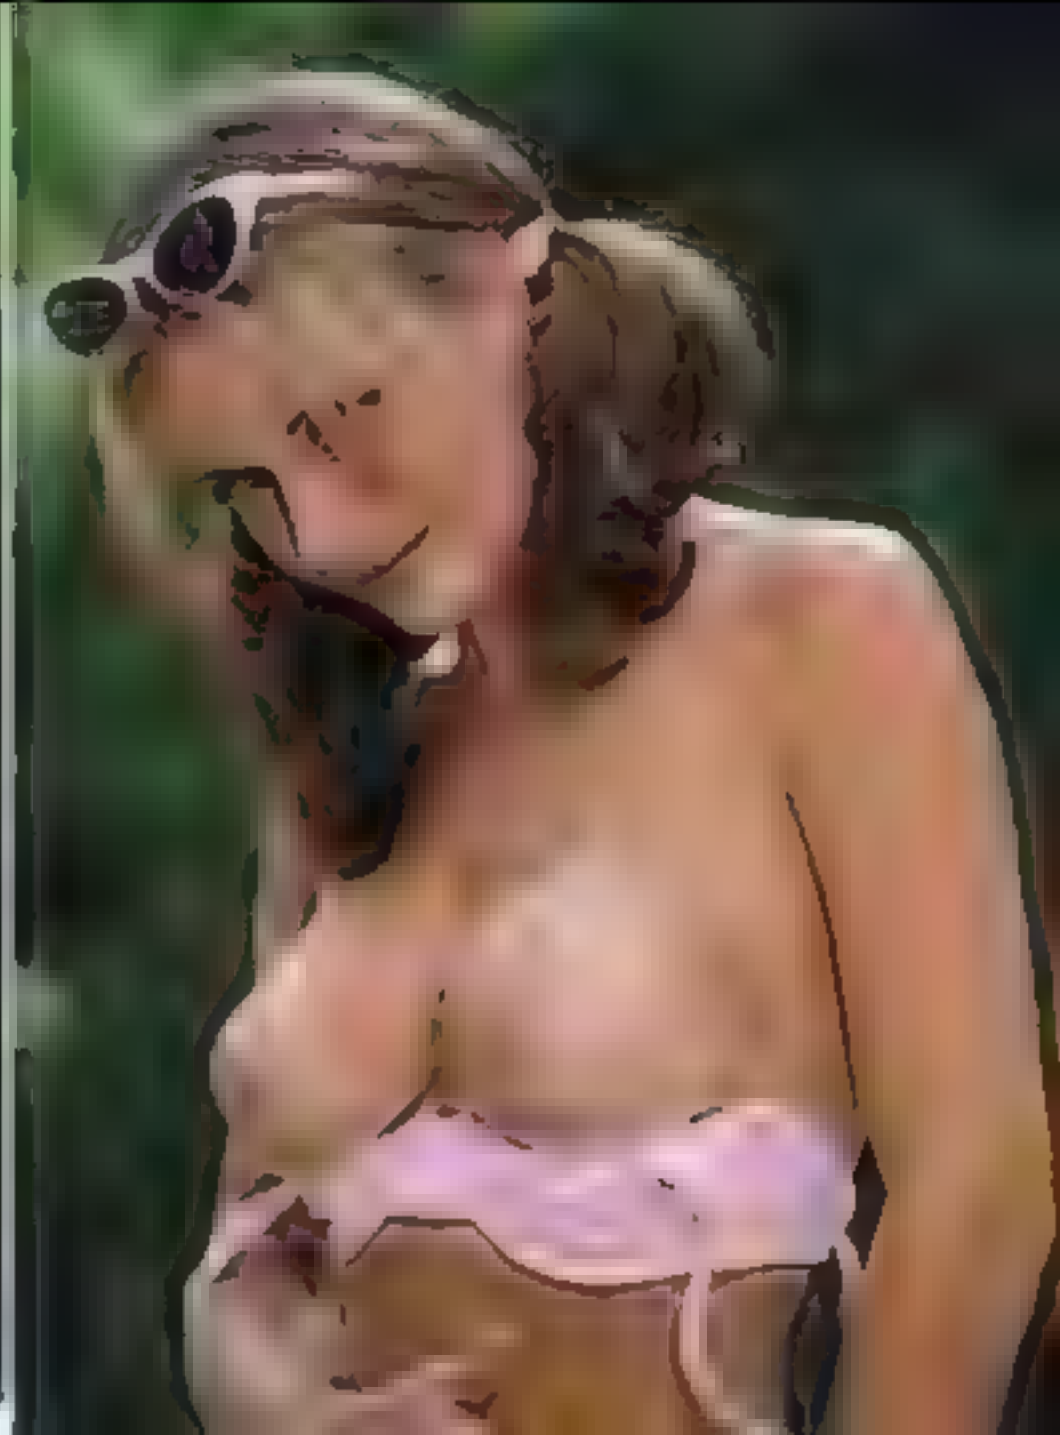

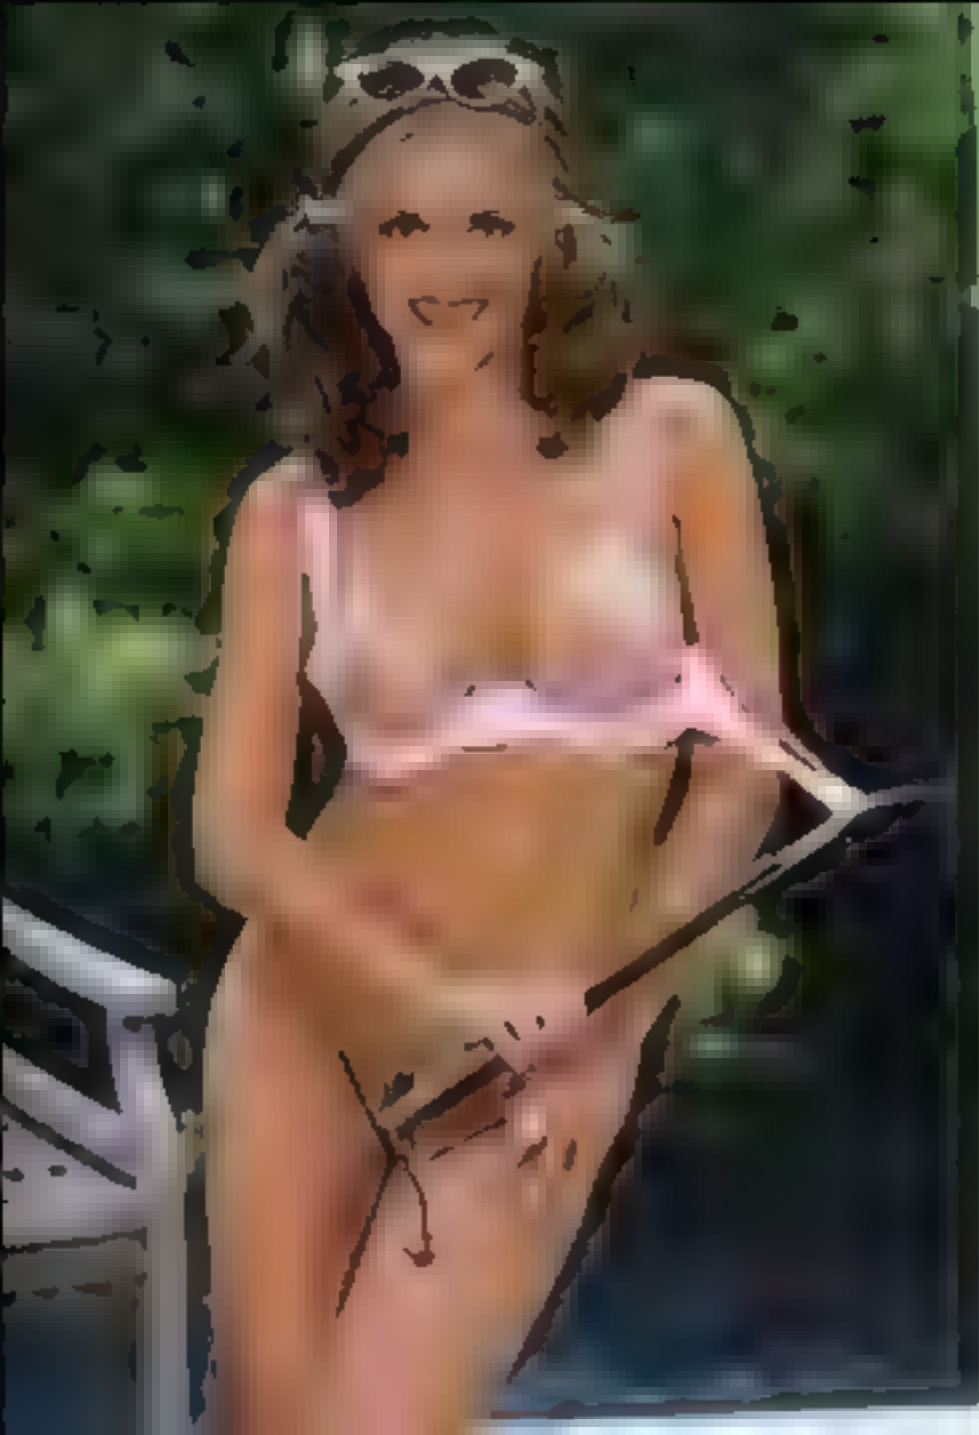

Kimberly Hall
Brookhaven Community College
Major: Criminal Justice

"When I was really young, I didn't think college education was necessary. Now, at 25, I'm just realizing how important it is for all women to have a degree or a trade. I'm looking forward to completing my studies and becoming a detective or a crime-scene investigator."

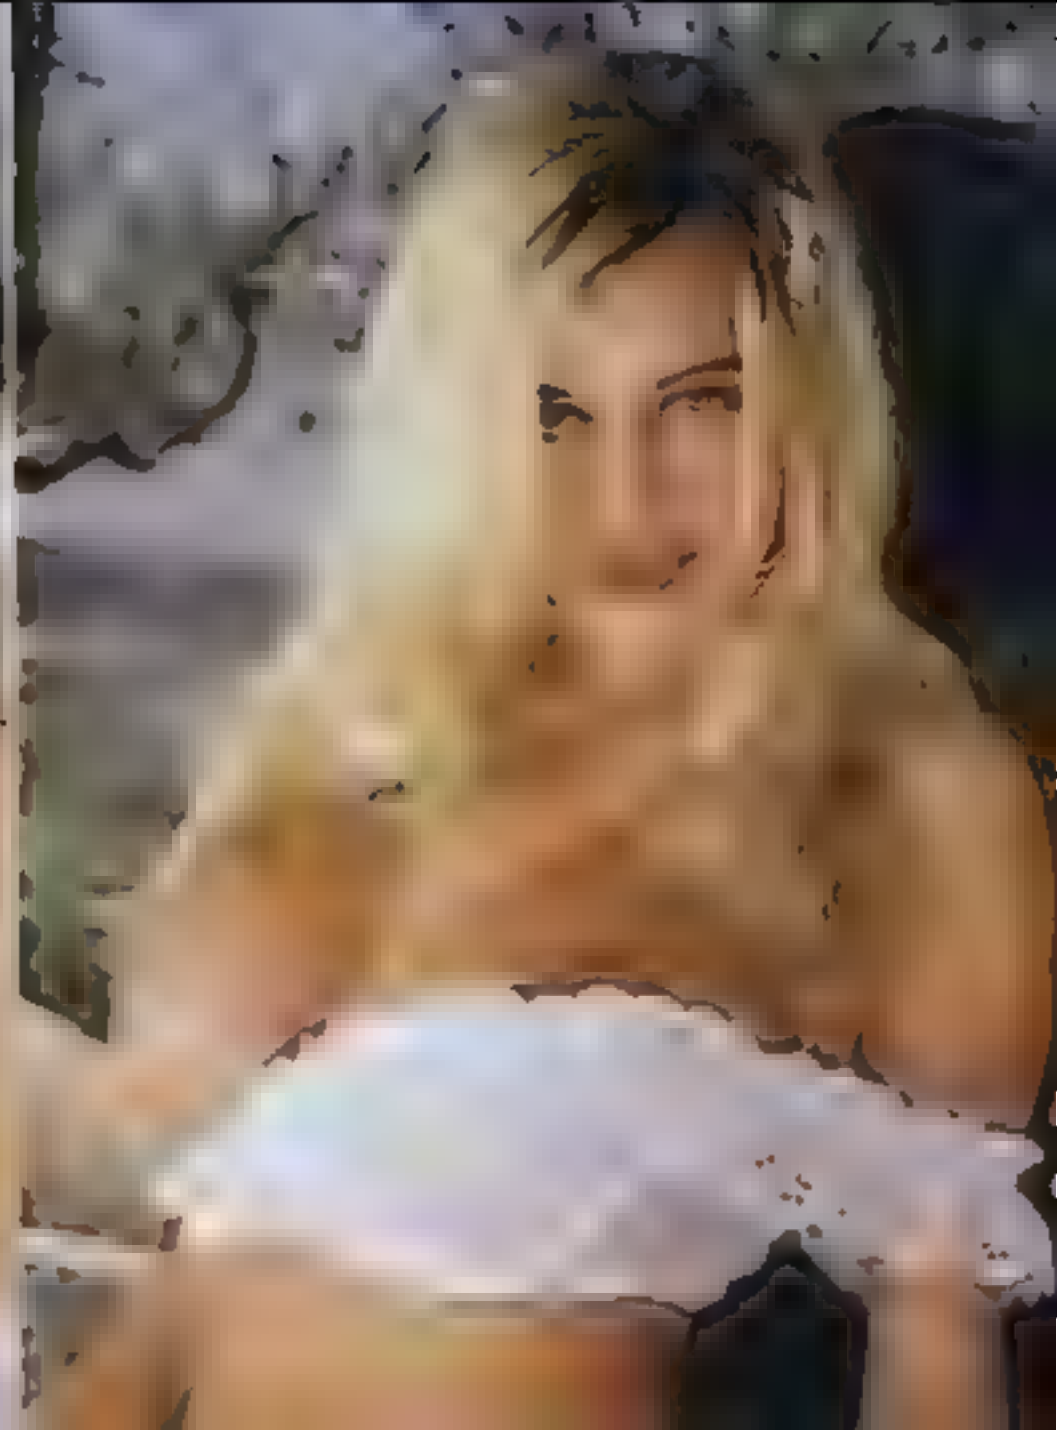

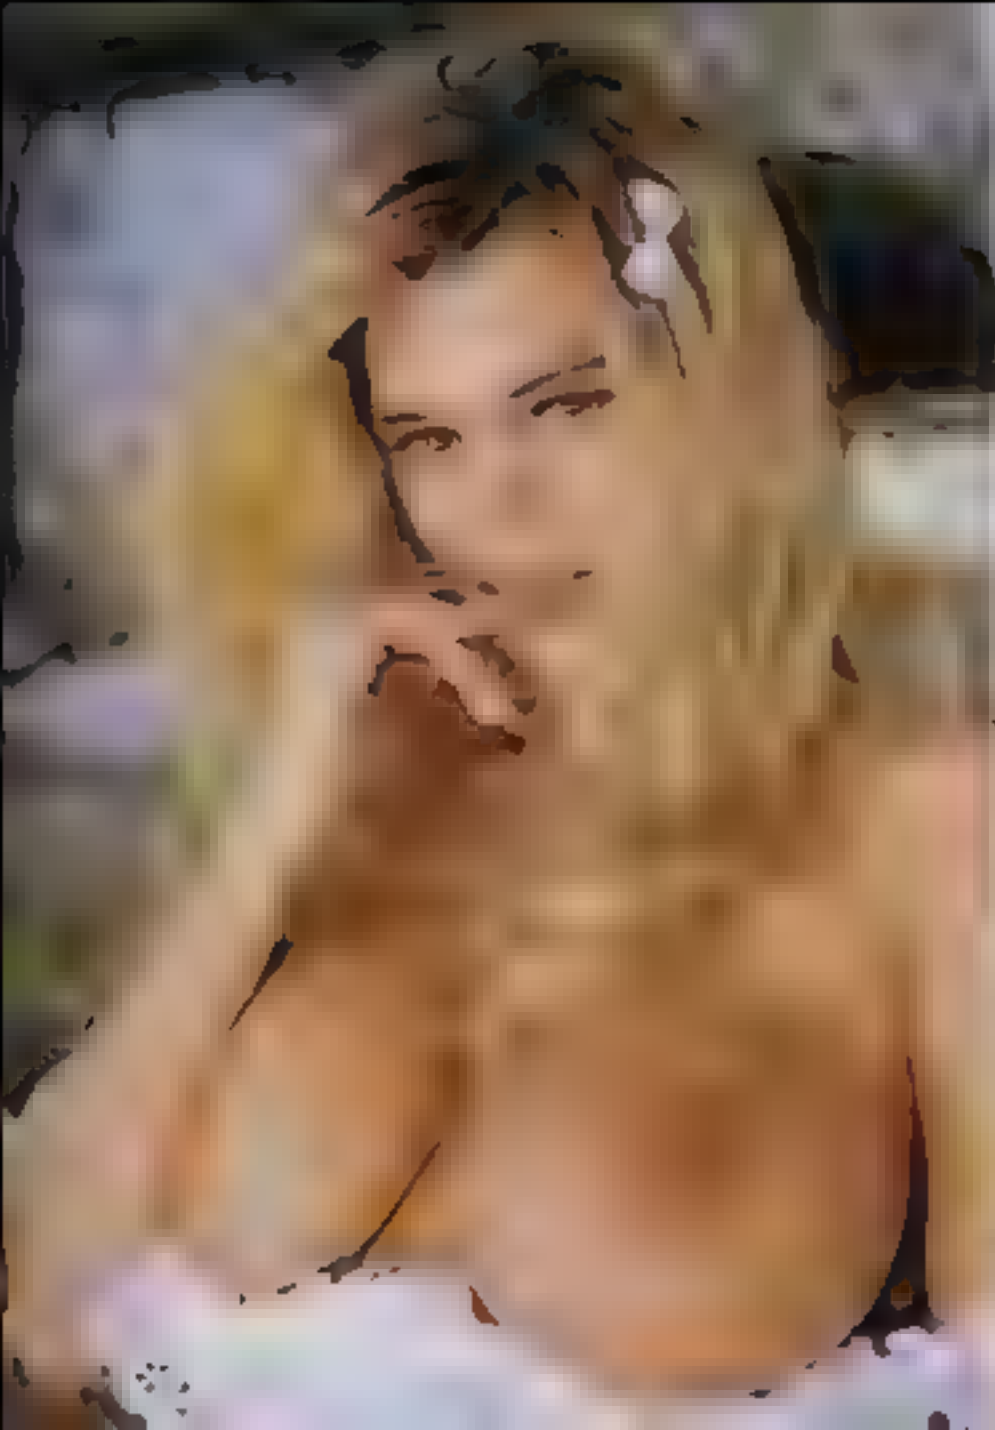

Carmella Keyse
Orange Coast College
Major: Physical Education

This 20-year-old Ohio native confided that she falls for guys who are tall, dark, shy and playful—but is turned off by those “who think they’re all that!” She’s a fruit and veggie junkie, prefers the computer geek type to the campus jock and, without elaboration, told us her family members were all “a little crazy.”

Linda Liu

Suffolk University

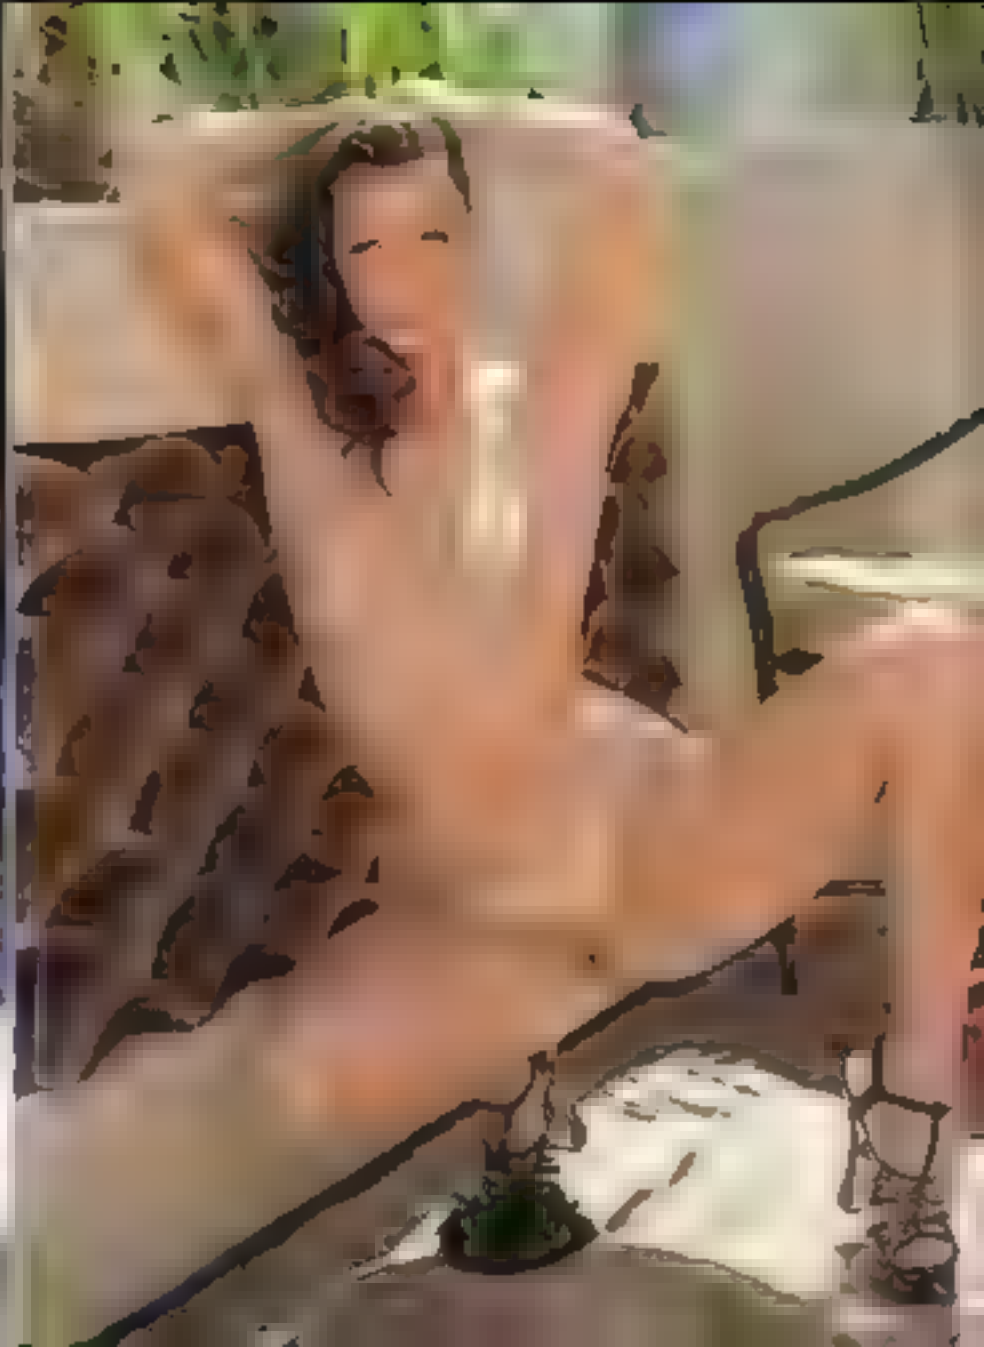

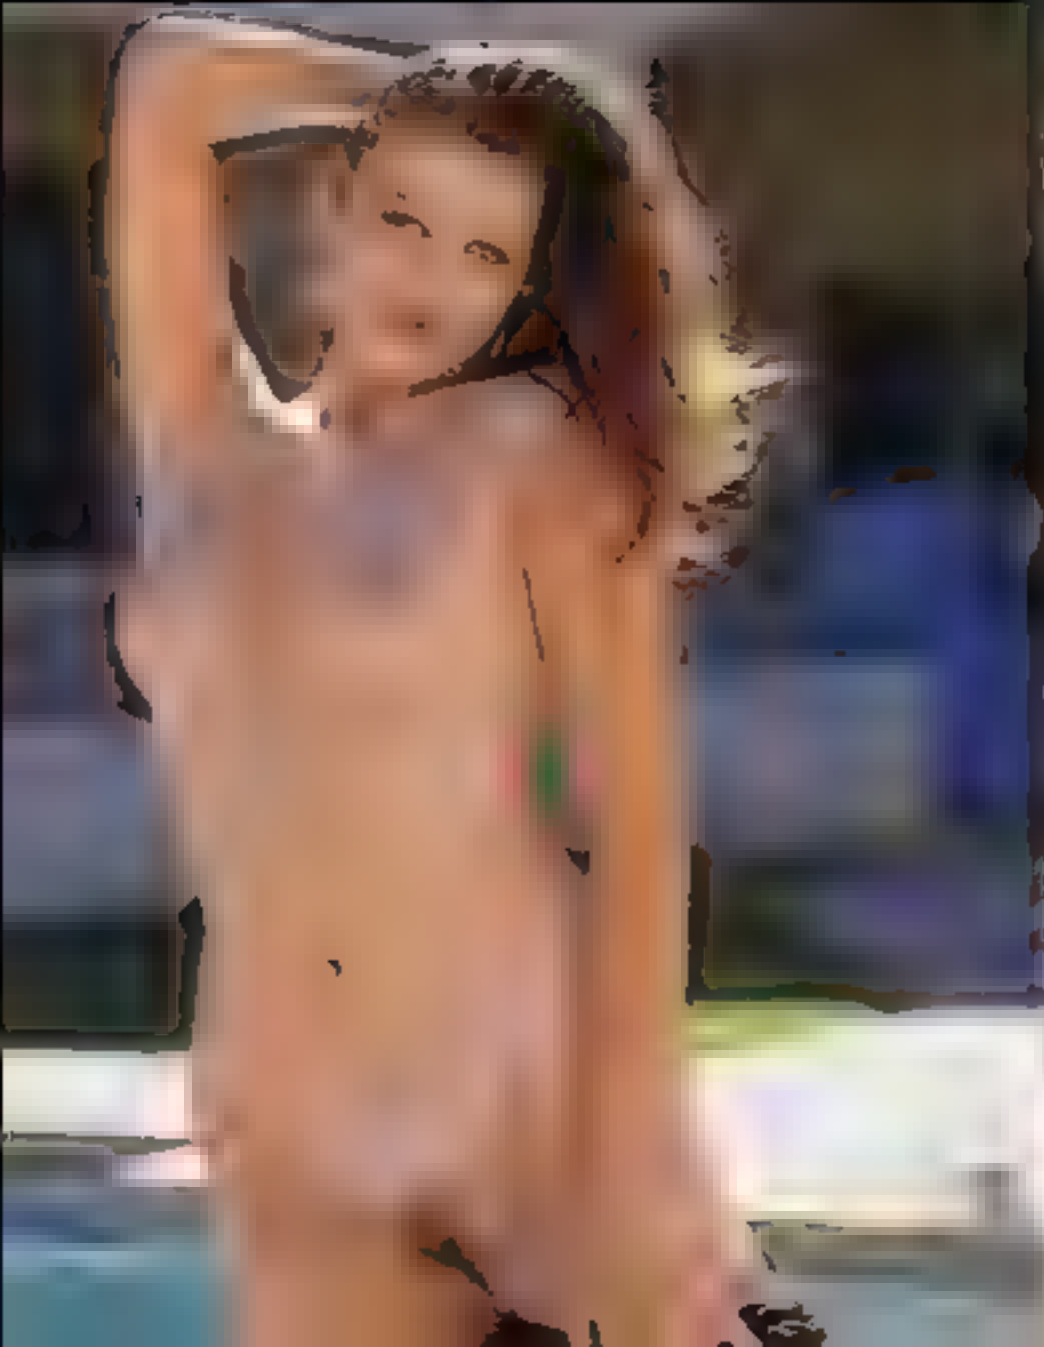

Major: Finance

She has won academic honors as well as claiming the Miss Chinese/New York title

Jamiele Dilbeck

Thai Anh
Golden West College
Major: Physical Therapy

She was born in Vietnam, but the 22-year-old transplanted Californian long ago picked up the all-American weaknesses for ice cream and chocolate

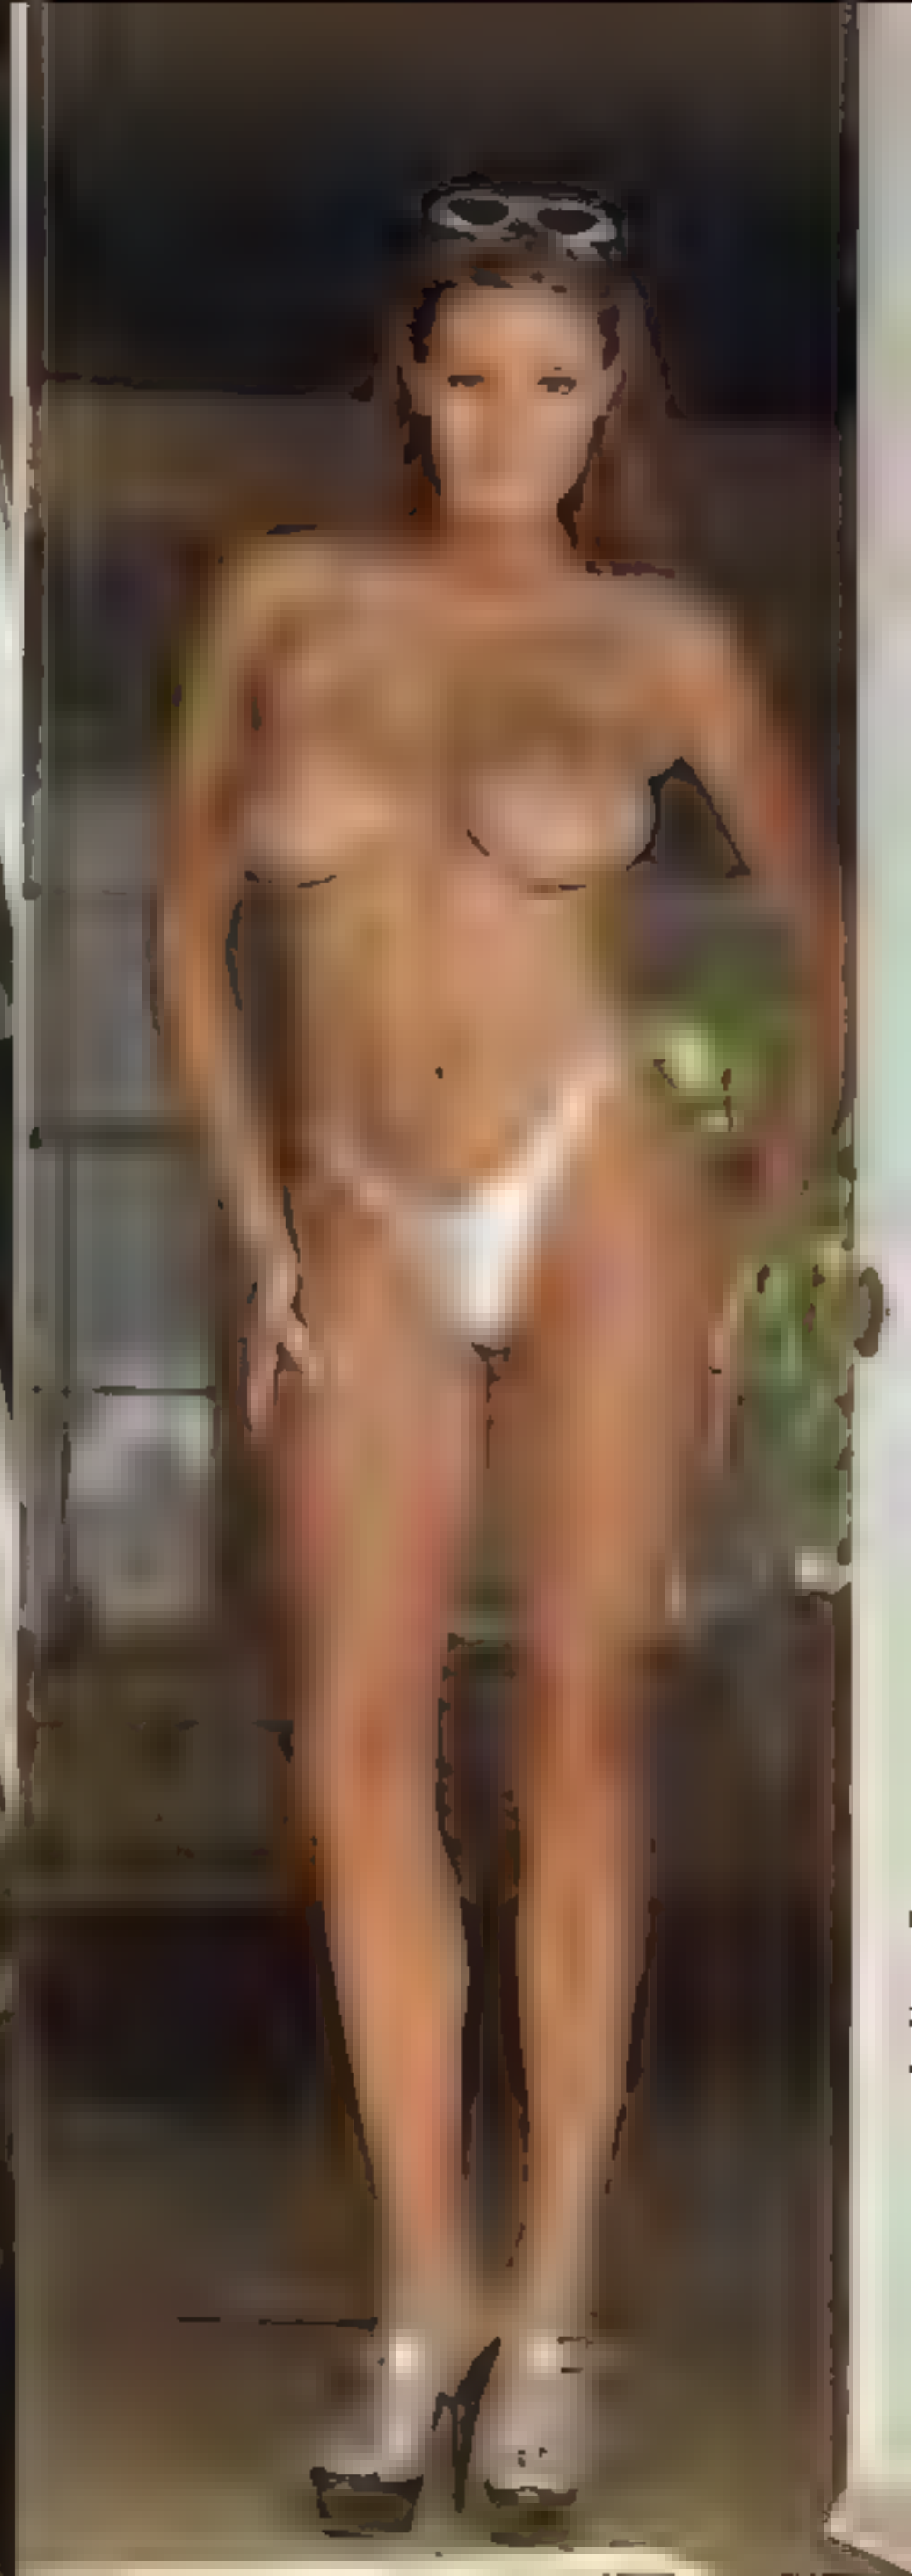

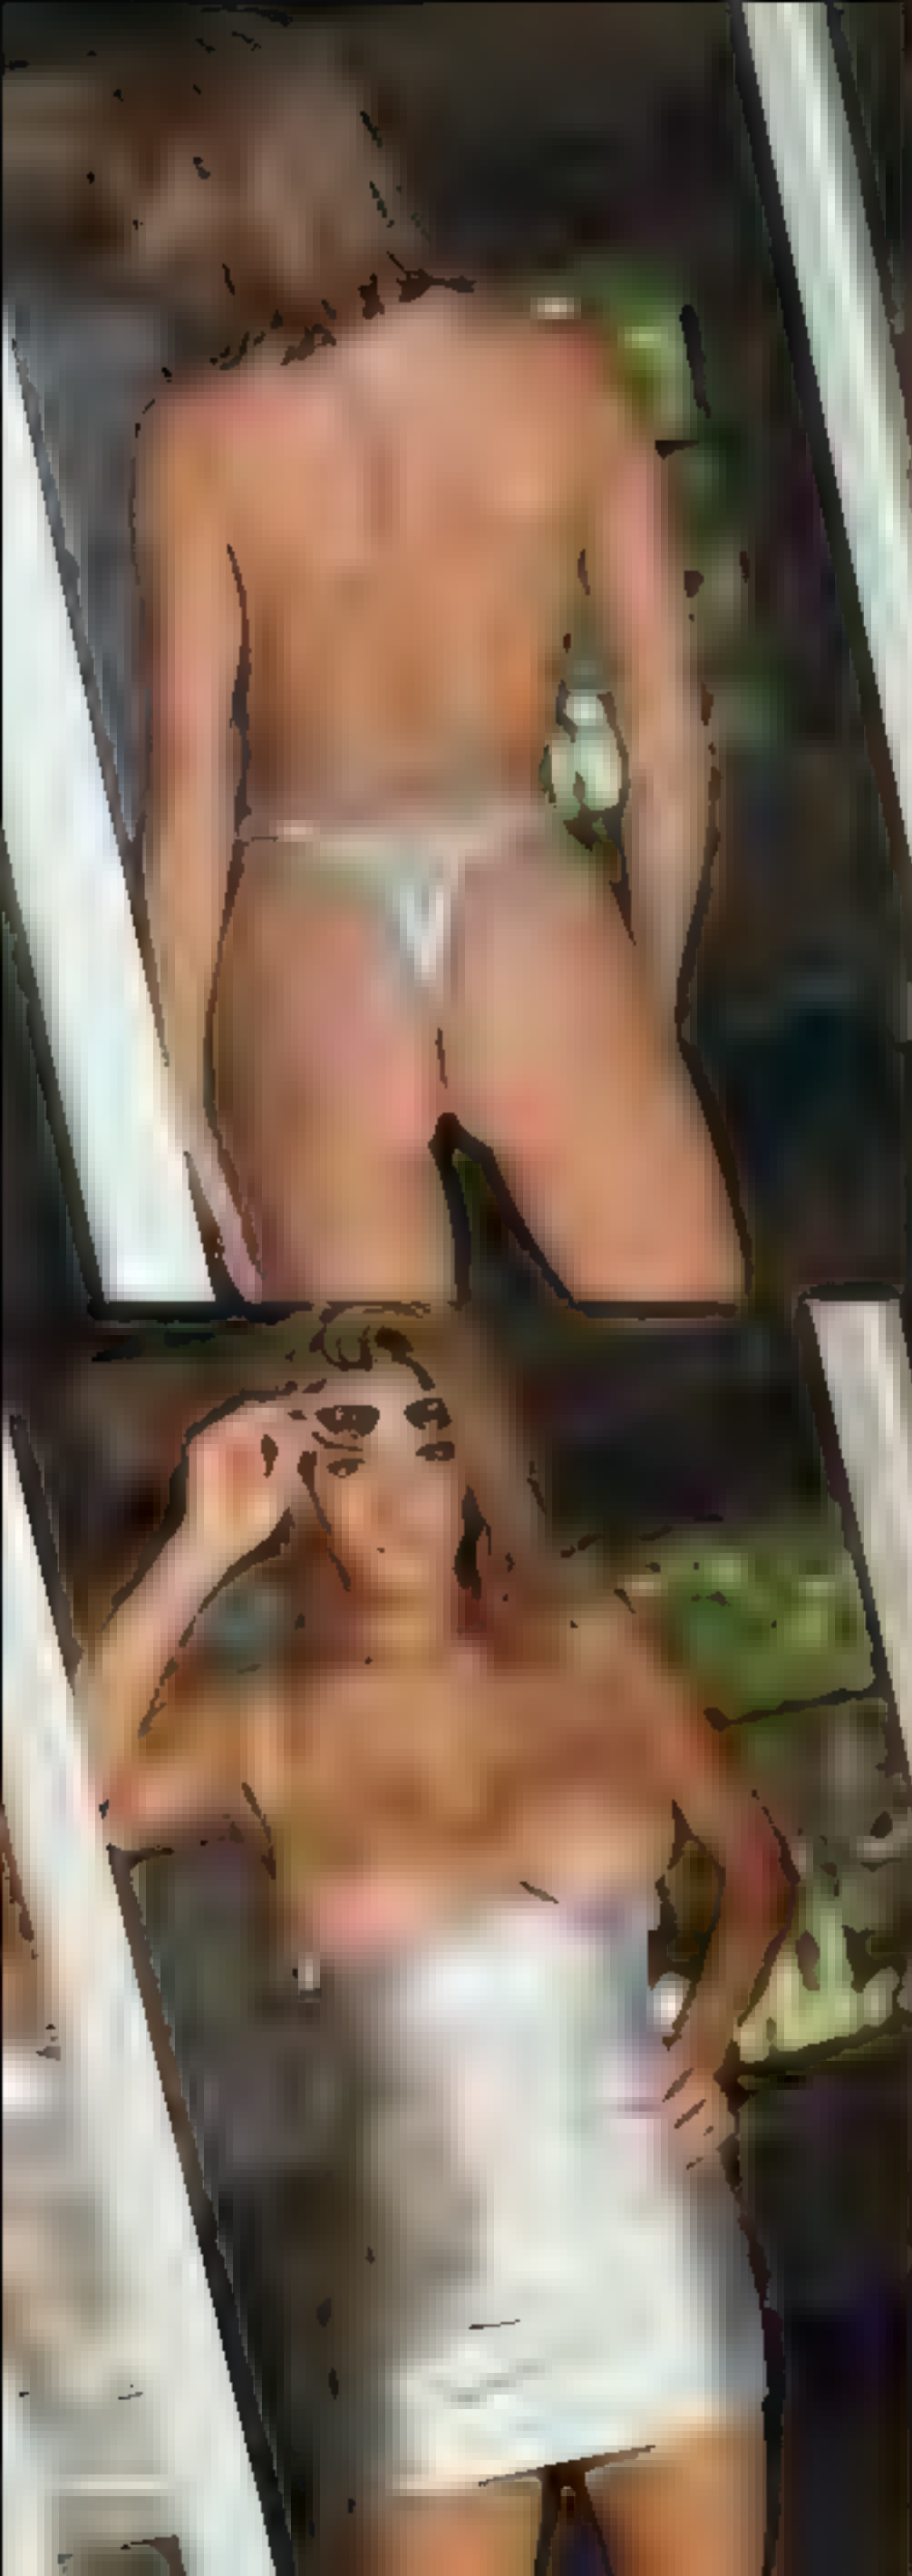

Melanie Camberlango
Diablo Valley College
Major: Health

Her favorite leisure time activities include working out at the gym, reading, lying in the sun and shopping. Turn-ons? Men who blush, men who dance as well as she does and beautiful hands. Turnoffs? Beer bellies, drunks and bad shoes.

Kimberly Donahoe
DeKalb College
Major: Nursing

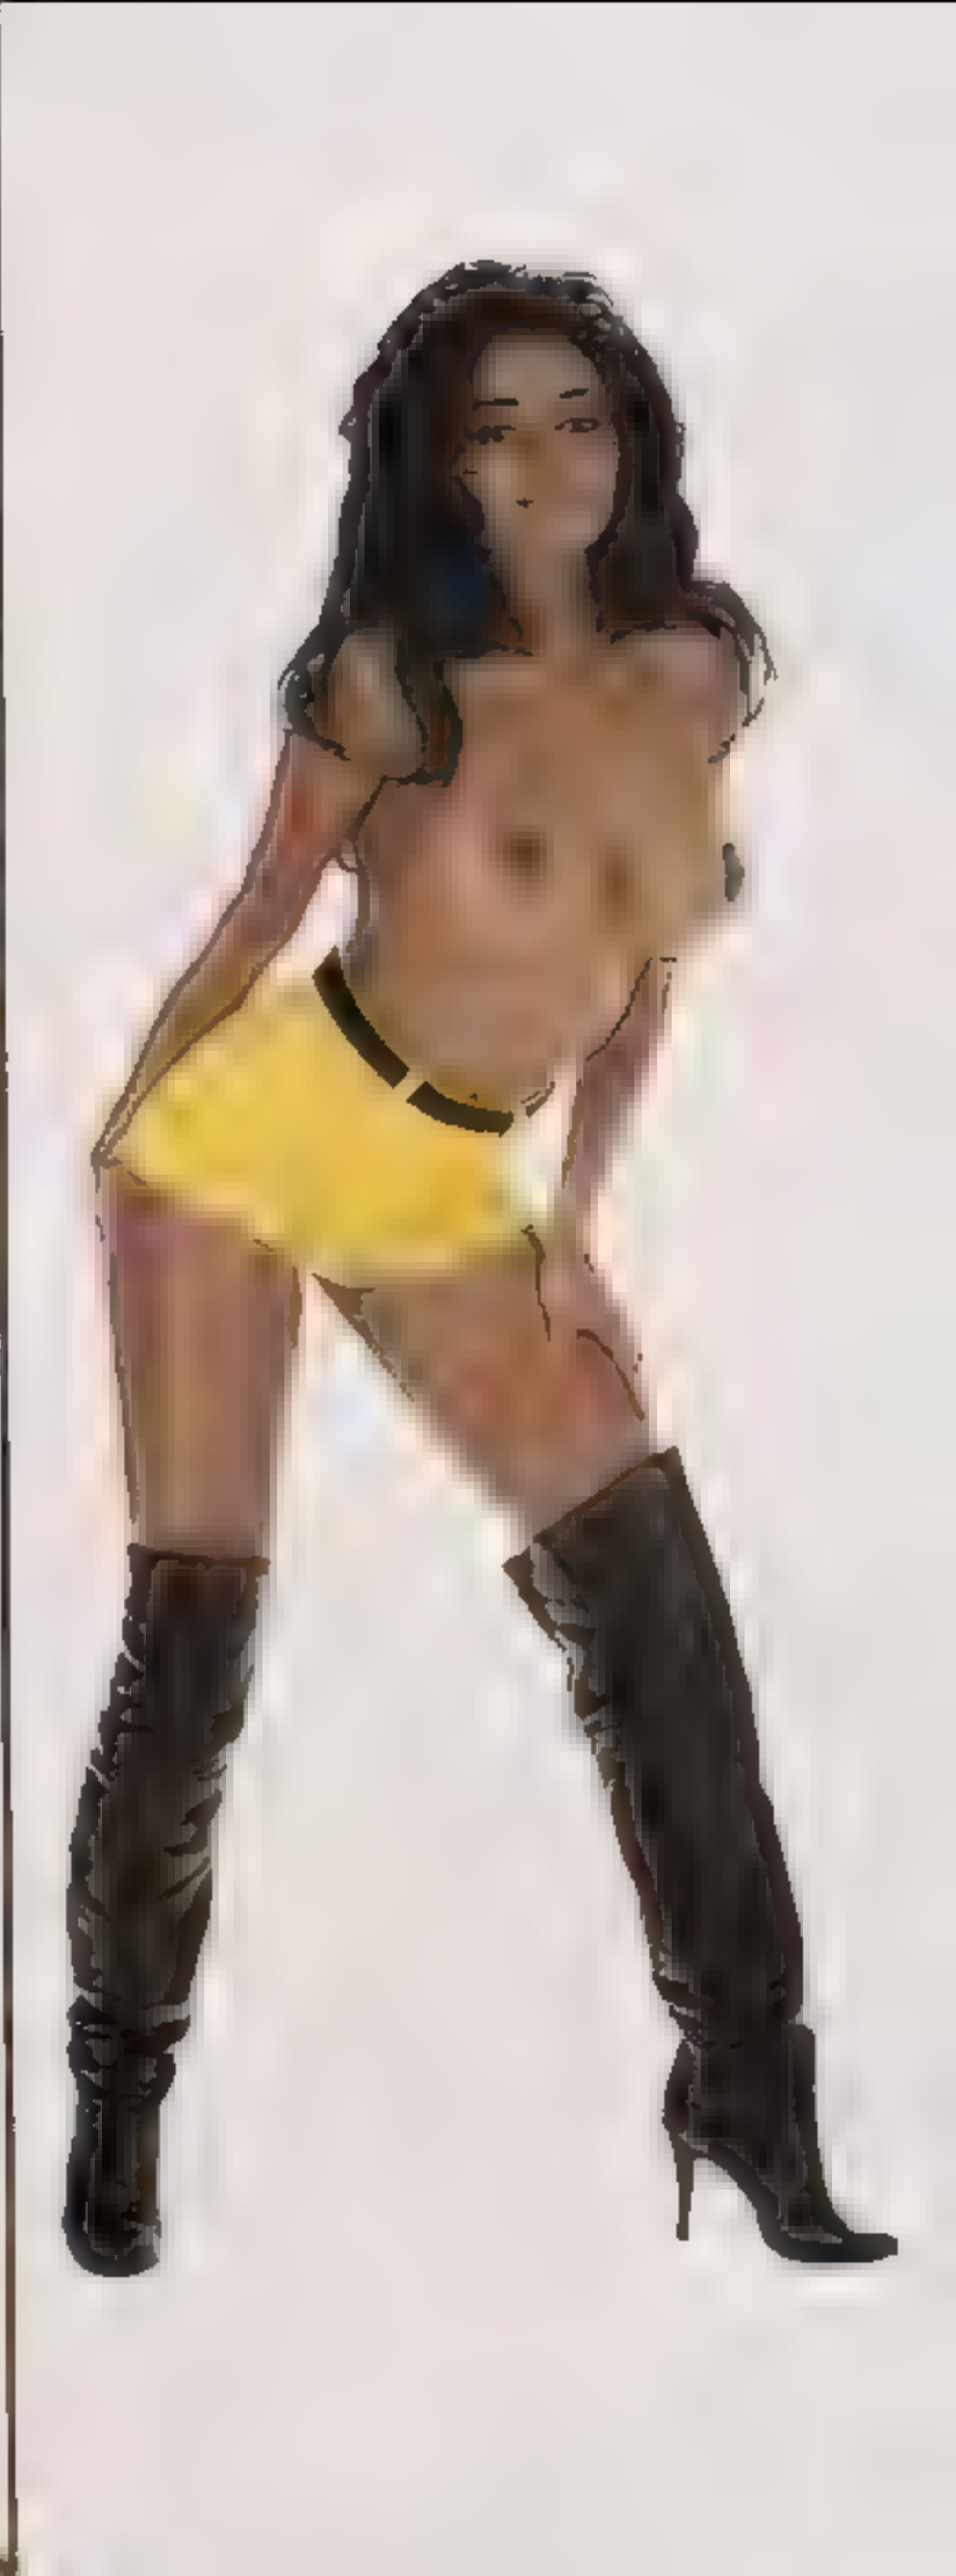

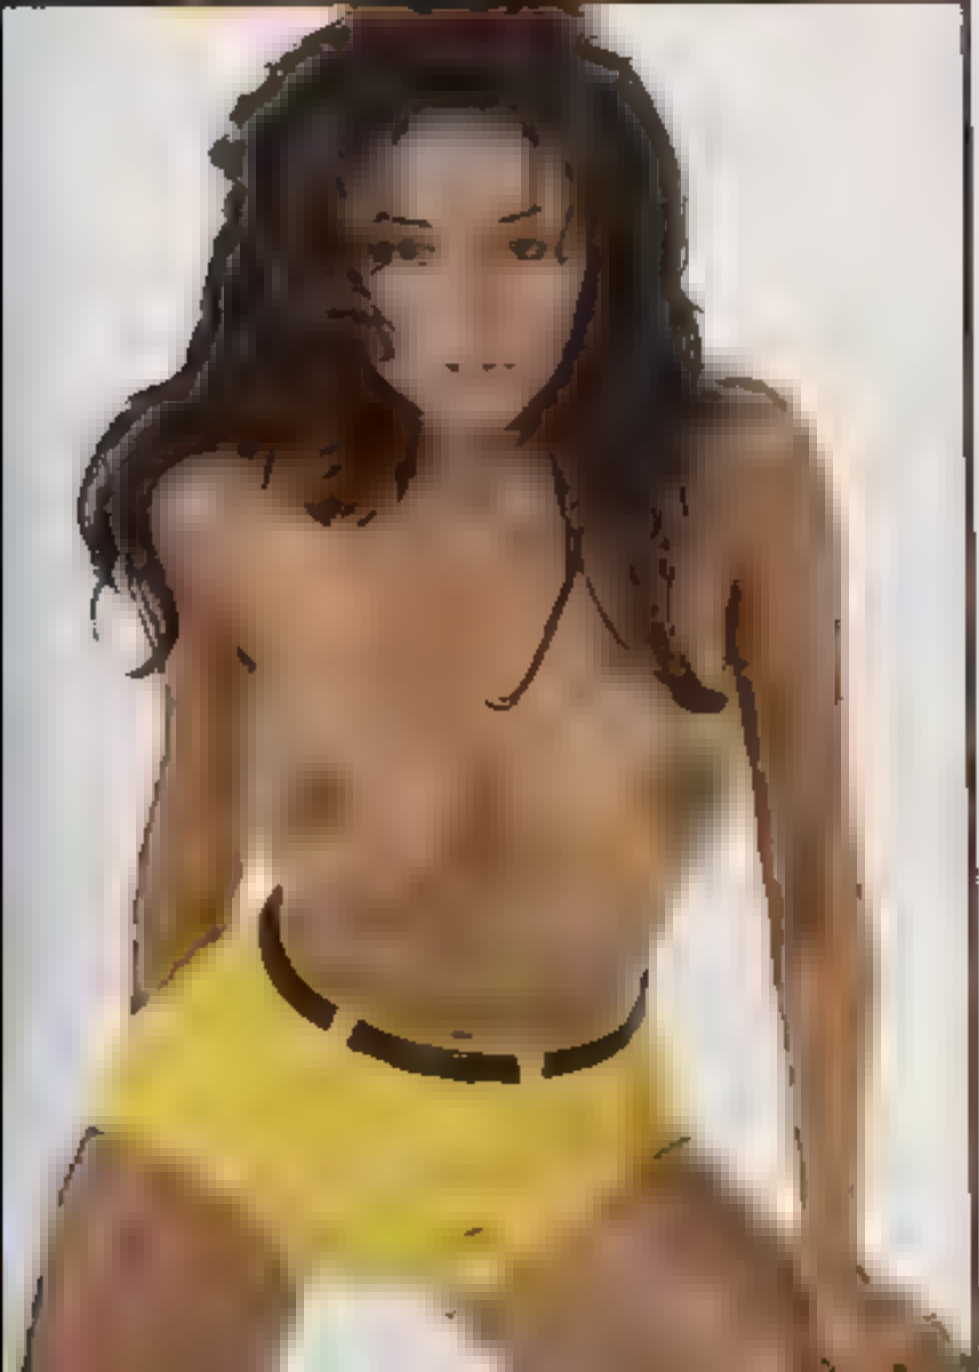

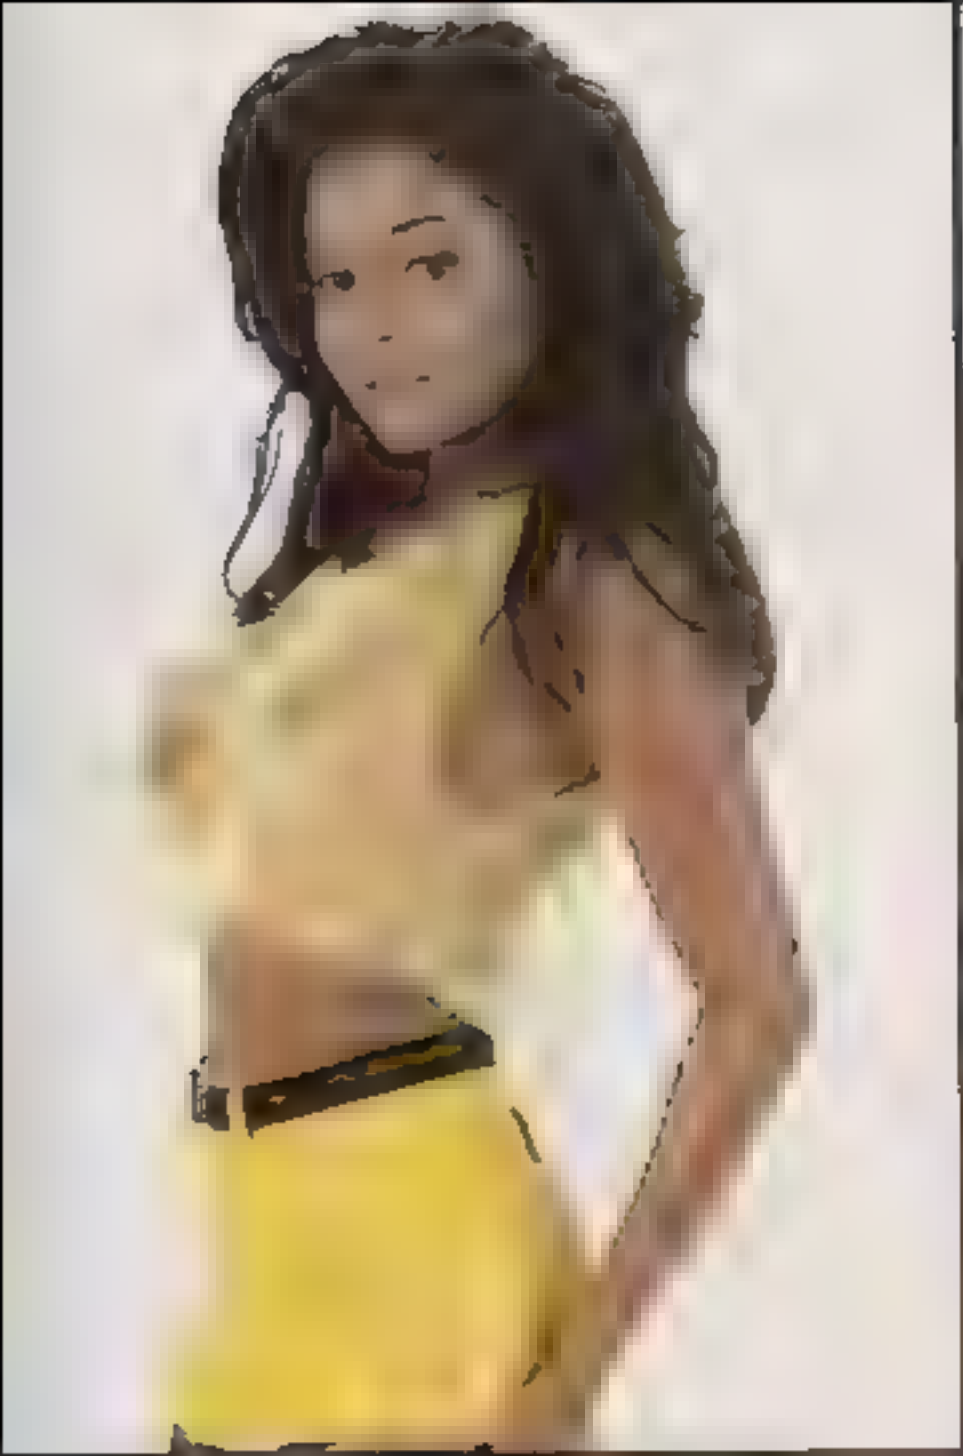

She describes herself as a Southern belle. "My family goes back at least five generations in Georgia." Kimberly would love to become a midwife because "I love the thought of bringing life into this world."

Tracy Johnson
Houston Community College
Major: Science

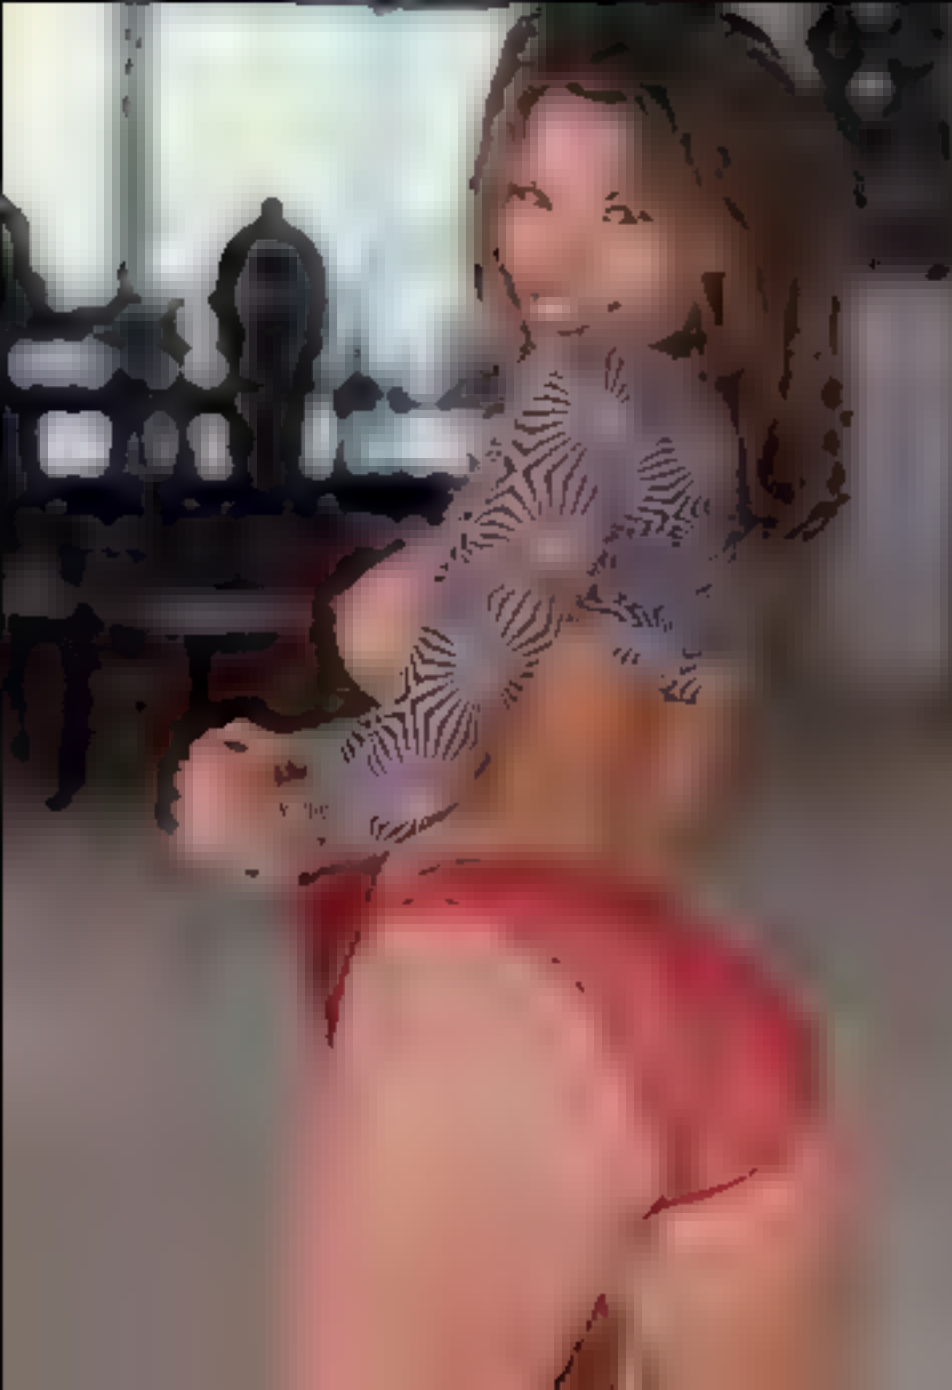

Tracy aims to become a nurse and seek her own place in the world. When she does settle on a man in her life, he'll be "one who could be a husband in every way."

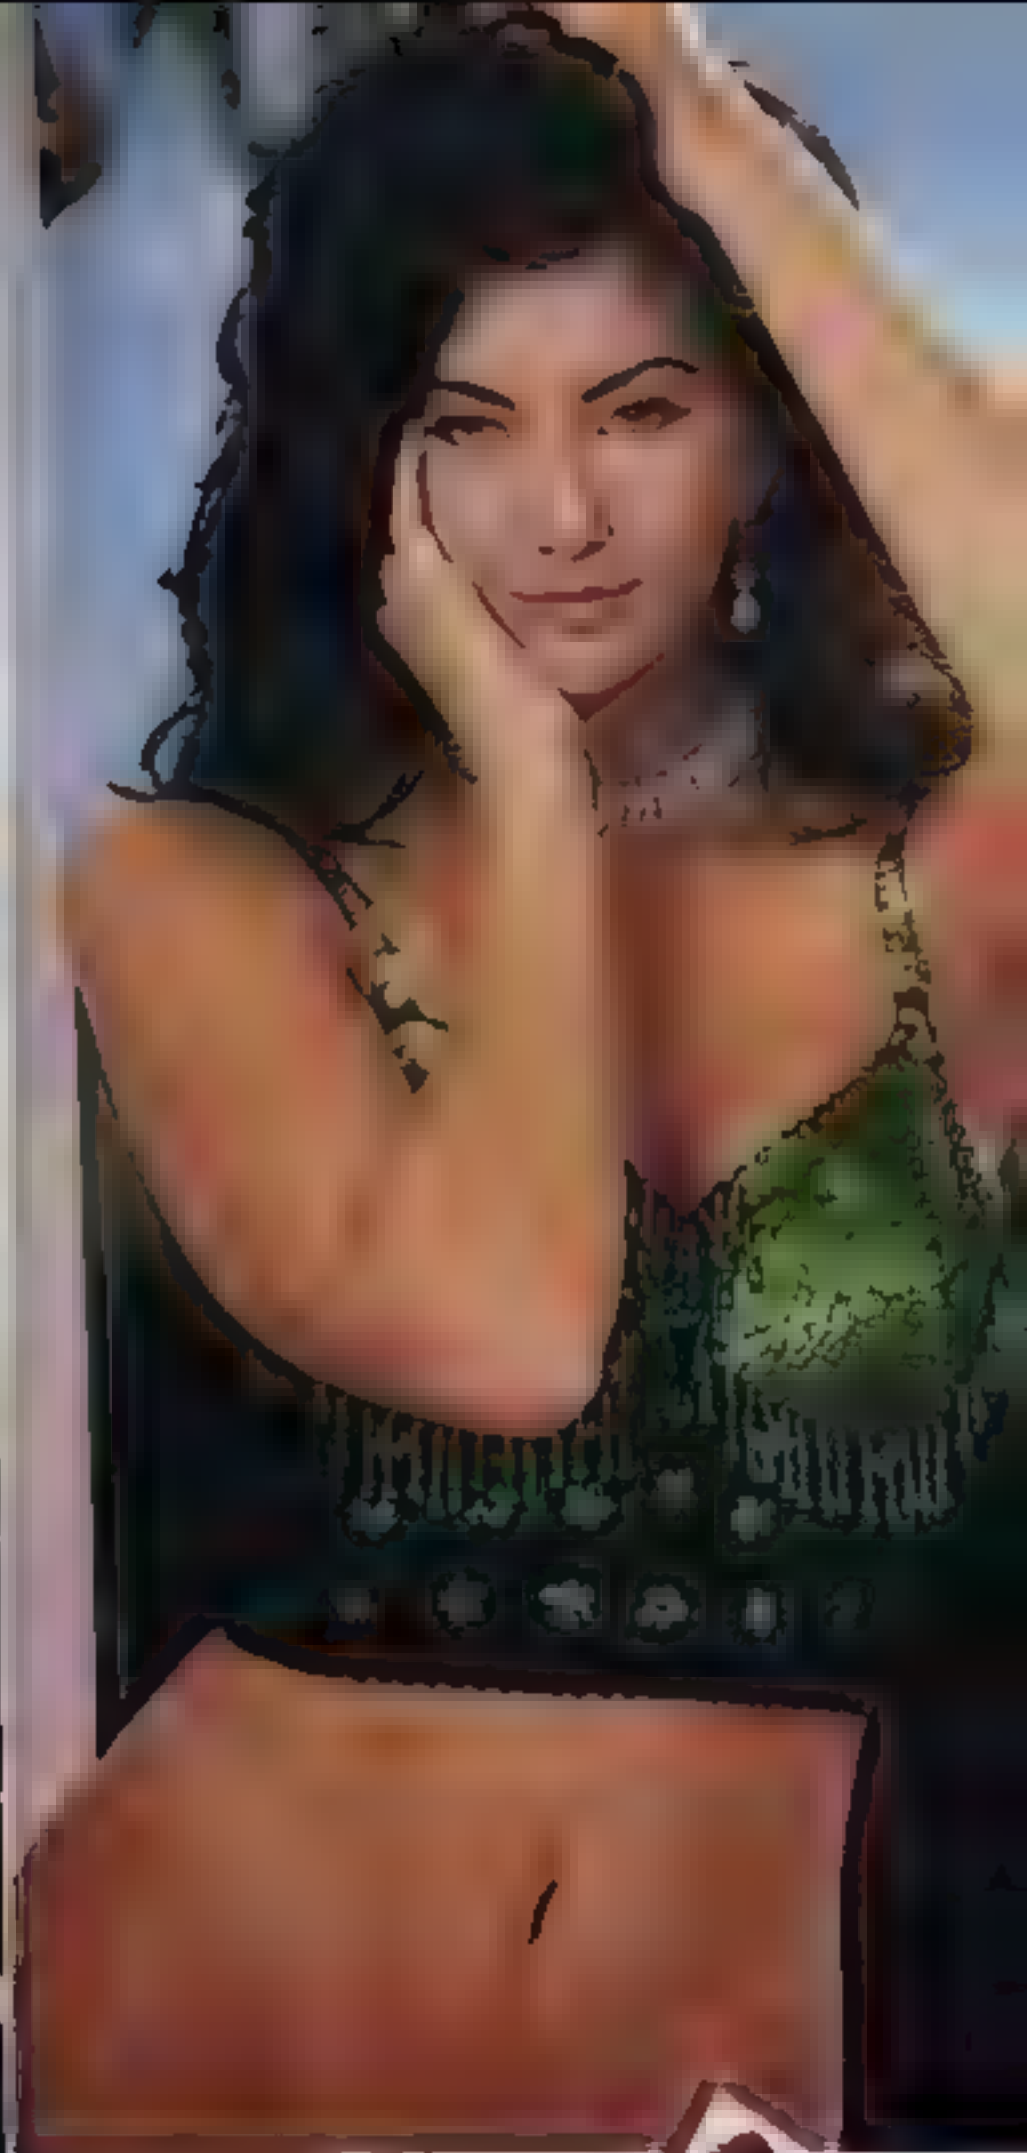

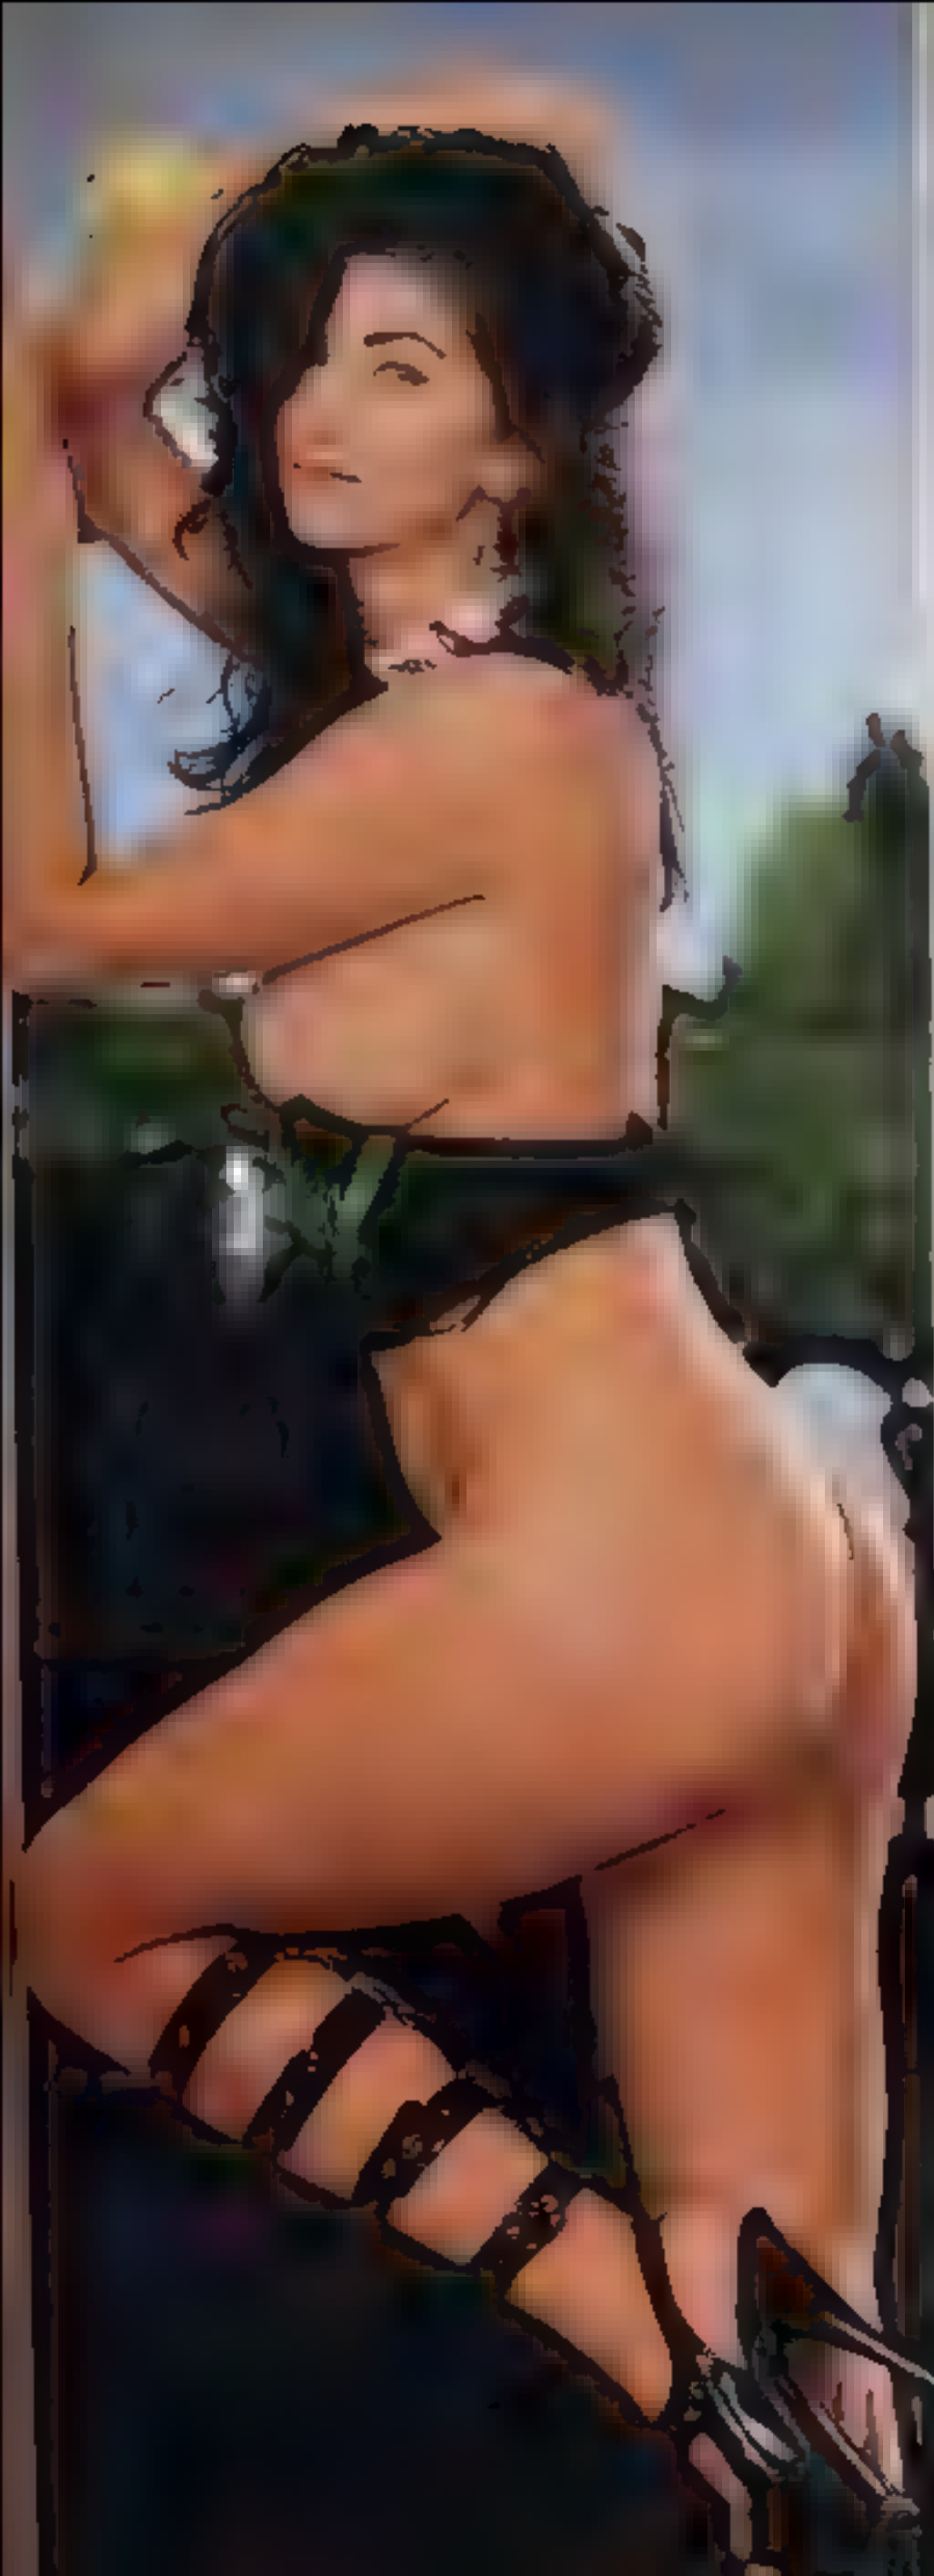

Jacquelyn Mills
San Jose State University
Major Advertising

Her term as the neighborhood leader and tree house president gave her a taste of power. Jacquelyn's ambition now is to become a top advertising executive.

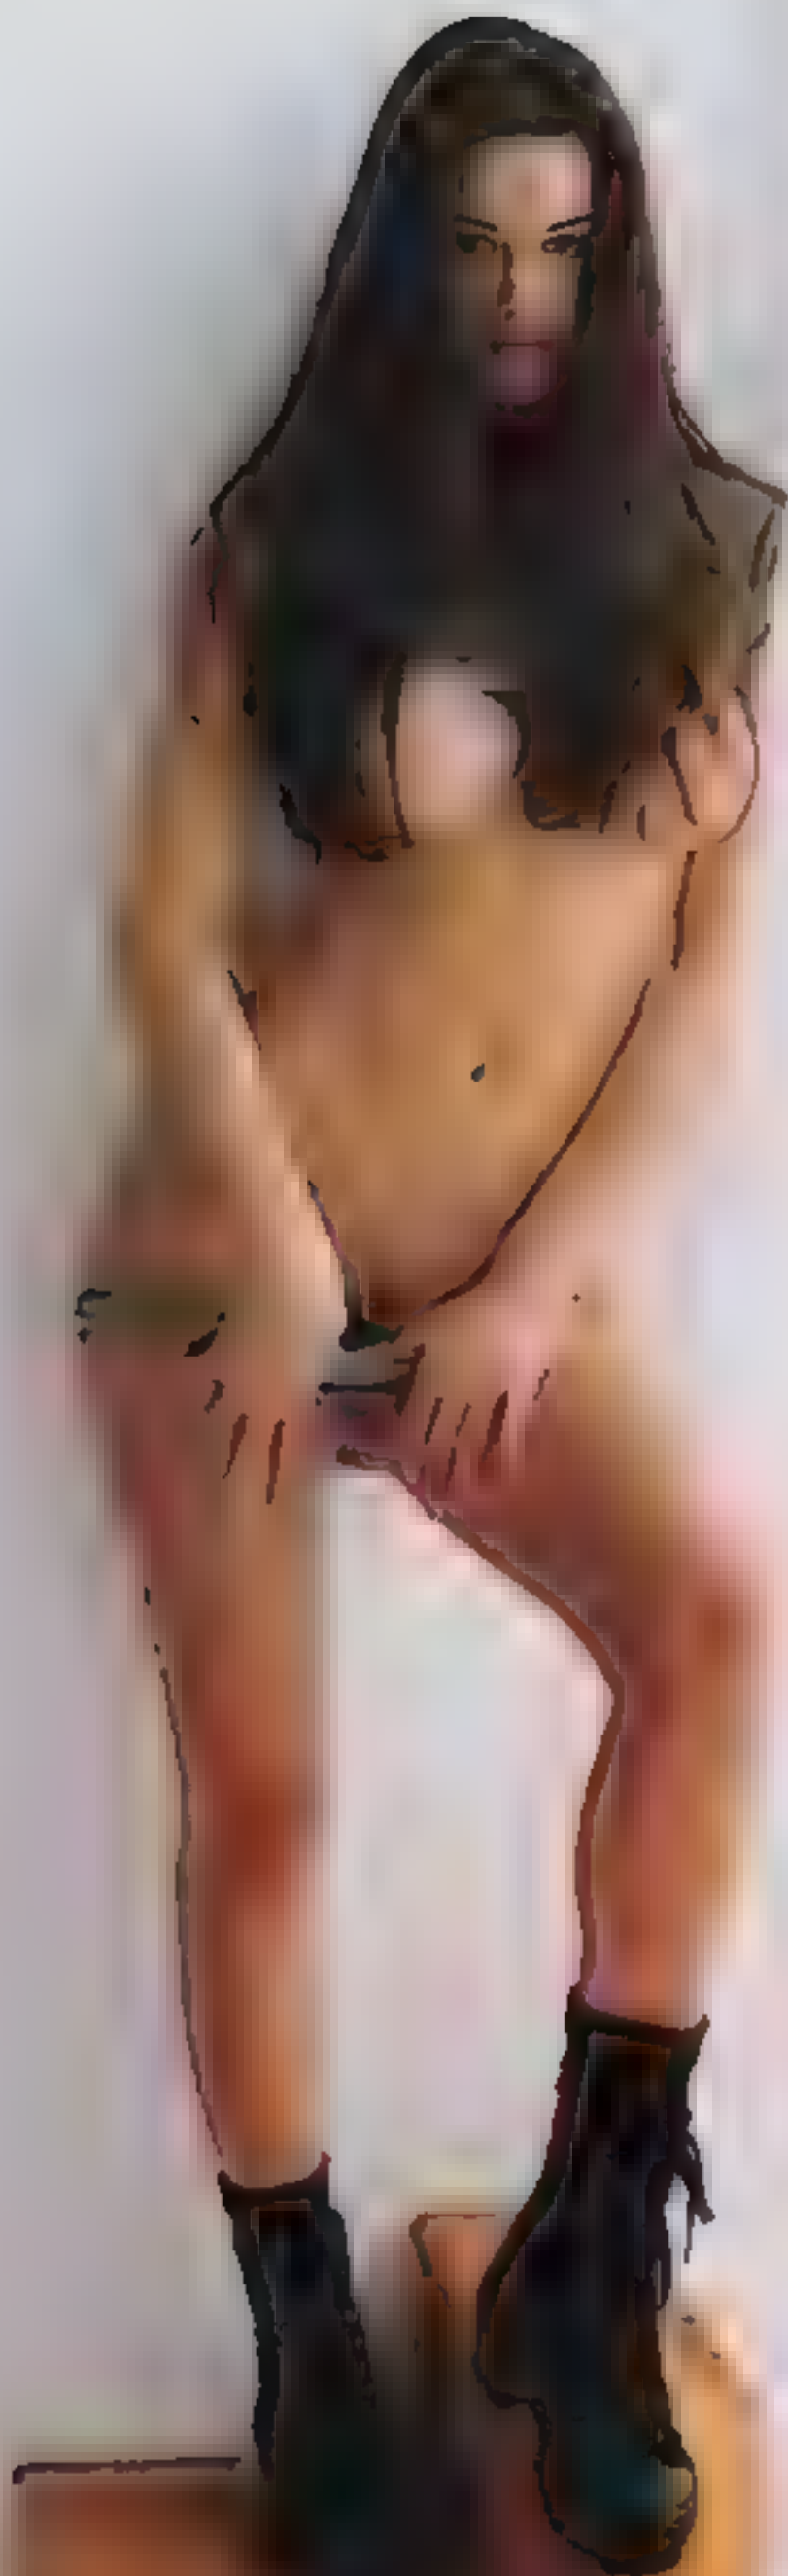

Trisha O'Neal
University of Georgia
Major Environmental Economics

Successfully managing both college and modeling careers, Trisha had this to say about the latter: "The whole warf thing is overdone. A woman should be a woman. We're meant to have hips and tits."

Tiffany Taylor
University of Maryland
Major: Psychology

At only 19, Tiffany has already made the Miss Hawaiian Tropic International USA finals while maintaining her academic standing. In her spare time, she raises iguanas, scuba dives and windsurfs.
